Post-War Program

Pacific Air Command

BY BRIG. GEN. ROBERT F. TRAVIS, USAF*
Commanding General

THE Pacific Air Command provides the Air Force elements of the military forces assigned to the Commander-in-Chief, Pacific. Presently the principal mission of this Command in the air defense of the United States against attack through the Pacific Ocean. Its various other missions (some of which cannot be stated because of security) are being performed to the extent possible with personnel and funds available.

Brig. Gen. Travis

Support of United States policy within the Pacific Command has been a major mission of this Command, including the conduct of operations as appropriate for the safety of life and property within the Pacific Command, and for the security of sea and air communications therein. This Command participates in the solution, on a command level, of problems involving all three branches of the service or the civilian community. It contributes to the support of commanders of adjacent commands in the discharge of their missions as directed by CINCPAC; provides forces as directed to discharge military commitments in other theaters; and prepares, trains and furnishes elements for joint operations as directed by CINCPAC, and for special operations as directed by higher authority.

With the current reduction of the Armed Forces in the Pacific, we are now placing great emphasis on our Reserve Forces, which must be trained to such a degree of proficiency that they will be ready for immediate mobilization for the air defense of the Hawaiian Islands, if needed. The Air National Guard maintains continuous unit training, with supervision and logistical support provided by this Command. Training courses in ground and flight operations are conducted for Air Reserve personnel.

The unified command organization in the Hawaiian Islands has made possible many joint Army-Navy-Air Force exercises. The value of these joint training missions cannot be over-emphasized as they have provided ideal opportunities for coordination and training of all military services under simulated combat conditions.

*Since preparation of this article, General Travis has been ordered to duty as Commanding General of the Ninth Strategic Reconnaissance Wing, Strategic Air Command, Fairfield-Suisun AFB, Calif. The Pacific Air Command will be discontinued 1 June when its functions will be assumed by the Military Air Transport Service.

House Considers Service Pay Increase; Senate Chairman Promises "Careful Study" of Measure

Debate on the Kilday Pay Bill to increase the compensation of the members of the Uniformed Services began in the House of Representatives on Thursday, 19 May, and was continued throughout the following day.

Considerable opposition developed, led by Representative Clarence Brown (R-Ohio), who was supported by Representatives Robert F. Rich (R-Pa.), Francis Case (R-S. D.), and others.

The bill was presented the House with the unanimous backing of the 28 members of the House Armed Services Committee and of the Democratic leadership of the House. The report of the committee brought out that under the measure substantial savings would be made in the future through the discontinuance of family allowances, changes in compensation of military personnel subsequently retired for physical disability, and elimination of special pay for officers for sea duty and foreign service and the reduction of extra pay for enlisted men on such assignments.

The committee's report emphasized the fact that uniformed personnel have suffered a substantial pay reduction through the expiration of military exemptions from income tax. It was pointed out that if the new pay scales are enacted the increased total of income tax payments by Service personnel will amount to more than $200,000,000 over those of 1948, or half enough to cover the estimated annual cost of the proposed pay raises. In discussing the bill on the floor of the House, Representative Paul J. Kilday (D-Tex.), author of the bill, pointed out that considering the various savings under the bill and the recapture of millions in income taxes, the overall net increase above present pay rates would amount to only about eight per cent.

With the committee's report was a letter from Budget Director Frank Pace in which he stated that with minor exceptions the bill in its final form conformed to the views of the President. The changes proposed would limit the $100 per month special inducement pay for doctors and dentists to serve for five years, and would eliminate the provision which permitted the President to assign administration of retired pay and hospitalization of retired personnel to the Veterans' Administration. The President felt that these activities should be retained by the Uniformed Services.

Mr. Pace agreed with the estimate of Defense Secretary Louis Johnson that the first year's cost, if the bill becomes effective 1 Oct. would be $360,000,000, and the annual cost in each of the fiscal years 1951 and 1952 would be between $400,000,000 and $405,000,000. The cost estimate of $360,000,000 for the fiscal year 1950, Mr. Pace reported, brought the measure well within the President's budget limitation of $400,000,000.

In his letter, Mr. Pace again raised the questions of a contributory retirement system and of combining pay and tax-free allowances into a single item of gross pay, all of which would be taxable. However, he agreed that there were at present insufficient available data on which to base comprehensive studies, and (Please turn to Page 1087)

Marine Aviation Anniversary

Marine Corps Aviation, which grew from a one-pilot force in 1921, to a peak of 117,496 Marine aviators during World War II, will celebrate its thirty-seventh anniversary tomorrow.

Currently specializing in fighter and fighter-bomber aircraft, Marine aviators now total 1,946 officers, with an overall figure of 15,929 officers and men assigned to aviation units.

About half of all Marine air squadrons are fighter squadrons, and more than half of the aircraft are F4U Corsairs—fighters which fly at speeds in excess of 400 miles an hour.

For familiarization with ground tactics and problems, a Marine pilot's training includes a course (along with line officers) at the Marine Amphibious Warfare School, where he pushes through swamps on night patrol, estimates the situation for an infantry-tank problem, and makes beachhead landings. Such indoctrination, the Marine Corps believes, enables the pilot to provide better air support for ground troops.

A continuous program of tactical experimentation is also being conducted with jet aircraft and helicopters, in addition to utility, transport and fighter planes.

Marine Aviation operates six air groups and two wings with a total of 815 planes.

Regular AF Commissions

The President has nominated 200 Air Force officers now on extended active duty to receive Regular U. S. Air Force commissions as second lieutenants. Additionally, 18 honor ROTC graduates were named to be Regular AF second lieutenants.

The officers were chosen from 2,400 who applied under Air Force regulations authorizing all officers within age limitations, and who are presently on extended active duty, to apply for Regular Air Force commissions.

Those nominated also include officers who applied under the original Air Force competitive tour plan, which was absorbed by the present program 1 July 1948.

The group is the first to be commissioned under the program integrating Reserve officers on extended active duty into the Regular Air Force. A second contingent will be selected in July; the number chosen depending upon vacancies existing at the time selections are made by the Air Force Personnel Board.

To be eligible for a Regular commission under these regulations an officer must have passed his 21st birthday but not have passed his 27th birthday on the date of his appointment in the Regular component, with the following exceptions:

New Construction Bill Asks 7500 Housing Units

Secretary of Defense Louis A. Johnson sent to Congress this week an authorization request for a $623,125,682 public works and housing program for the Army, Navy and Air Force, which would provide a minimum of 7500 housing units during the next fiscal year.

The legislation, which has Bureau of the Budget clearance, seeks $25,000,000 for emergency projects specifically authorized by the three Secretaries and $14,529,000 for the Special Weapons Project. The balance is allocated as follows: Army, $69,889,700 within the continental limits of the United States and $18,177,700 overseas; Navy, $98,493,300 and $89,219,501; and Air Force, $175,540,501 and $69,275,980.

Secretary Johnson told Congress that the program represents "the minimum requirement for authorizations which are immediately necessary and critical in the light of the overall strategic considerations of the Services."

It is emphasized that after Congress gives the authorization for the program, appropriations for actual construction would have to be approved separately.

The proposed program is unique in that it represents a comprehensive, unified request for all Services, formulated by the Munitions Board after studying needs of the Army, Navy and Air Force, approved by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and strongly endorsed by the Secretary of Defense. Heretofore, the individual Services have sought separate Congressional authorization for such projects.

Included in the $430,000,000 which will be sought during the next fiscal year—a sum already proposed for such work in the President's budget—is $152,000,000 for family housing units. A total of $97,600,000 would be used for housing in the Zone of Interior and $54,500,000 for overseas quarters. This would provide 5500 units in the United States and 2000 overseas.

For housing in the Zone of Interior, the Army would receive $41,000,000; the Navy, $12,000,000 and the Air Force, $44,500,000. Overseas, the breakdown would be Army, $15,000,000; Navy, $16,000,000 and Air Force, $24,000,000.

Defense officials explain that while there is serious need for additional Navy housing, the shortage is more acute at Army and Air Force installations. They emphasize that in the preparation of the program, there was no attempt to set quotas for the various Services, but rather the aim was to consider separate projects on the basis of their need to the National Defense, without regard to Service.

It is estimated that approval of the housing features of the program would alleviate the desperate shortage of quarters from five to 22 per cent at various installations. Overall estimate is that the housing planned for next year would take care of only about 12 per cent of the current needs.

The family quarters would be restricted (Please turn to Page 1097)

San Francisco Chronicle—"We ask the new Secretary of the Navy to make his own independent determination of whether the morale of the naval service—and especially air arm—has not already reached a 25-year low as a result of the kicking around the Navy has been getting at the hands of its foes."

Dallas Morning News—"Dr. Compton says that the biggest problem of military research is to find out how much it costs. It seems simple. Let the Navy have charge of the floating debt, the Air Force handle the overhead, and the doughboy count the petty cash. All else, of course, will remain a military secret."

Detroit News—"We feel that unification of the Armed Forces is taking hold when our brave defender shows up—like a World War I aviator at Issoudun—in parts of four uniforms."

Daily Argus Leader, Sioux Falls, S. Dak.—"Why

then should his (New Secretary of the Navy) selection be wise? First, because he will assume his duties with no strong prejudice in favor of any service and thus would be of value in promoting the highly desirable unification program. Second, he has a civilian's attitude toward public expenditures instead of that of a military man. Third, he is not shackled by tradition or habit. Fourth, his record indicates he is a man of broad understanding and able to adjust himself to the requirements of his new position with the broad skill of a successful executive."

New York Times—"President Truman's surprise appointee for Secretary of the Navy, Francis Patrick Matthews, emphasized in his first comment the civilian character of the post. His reference to owning a 'rowboat' as being his naval experience was frank and disarming. The Secretary is not supposed to be a naval technician. He is supposed to be a civilian administrator. Mr. Matthews has had wide experience and no small responsibility in administrative capacities."

Baltimore Sun—"You won't get much frank discussion from now on about the relative importance of Navy and Air Force strategic conceptions. The new Secretary of Defense has put a gag between the lips of the men most qualified to lead such discussions."

Portsmouth Herald—"The men who flew the airlift rate a cheer and a big one, from the whole country as well as from Defense Secretary Johnson, who sent them a commendation through General Clay. . . . America can do it the hard way, as the war and the Berlin blockade showed. But the hard way is not the best way. Today this country is more alert and prepared than ever before in time of peace. It is determined to achieve the best by being ready for the worst."

Text of Pay Report

FOLLOWING is the text of the report the House Committee on Armed Services presented this week in urging enactment of the pay bill. Also presented on this page and the next are tables compiled by the Committee's staff and included in its report.

The purpose of the proposed bill is to provide compensation consisting of pay, allowances, and certain benefits for members of all branches of the uniformed services, which consist of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Coast and Geodetic Survey, Public Health Service, the Reserve components thereof, the National Guard, and the Air National Guard. Its principal objective is to attract and retain personnel in the services, adequate both in numbers and in capabilities. It seeks primarily to establish a compensation program which will induce men and women to enter the services on a career basis and which would remunerate them on this basis comparable with persons who seek and follow careers in industry and in the professions. It also seeks to correct an antiquated and unsound compensation structure which has been pyramiding in various phases since 1908, without over-all corrective action.

In addition, the proposed bill contains a complete revision of the present physical disability retirement laws and substitutes for those laws a new theory of physical disability retirement based on either the degree of disability or years of service. It is anticipated that this provision will eventually save the Government millions of dollars, and in the event of a future mobilization may well save the Government many millions more.

While the committee has accepted many of the recommendations of the Hook Commission, it has not accepted them all and, in some instances, fundamental changes were made in the initial legislative draft. Originally the proposed act contained revisions of voluntary and involuntary retirement laws. The committee was of the opinion that the subject of voluntary and involuntary retirement was so complex, so vast, and would have such far-reaching effects upon the services that an attempt to revise or rewrite these laws should be held in abeyance until some future date, when it could be made as a separate study. Furthermore, it should be remembered that the Congress has within the past 3 years carefully considered all of the voluntary and involuntary retirement laws, as indicated by Public Law 305 of the Seventy-ninth Congress and Public Laws 381 and 810 of the Eightieth Congress.

Changes Since 1908

There has been no comprehensive study of pay for the uniformed services since 1908. Thus the magnitude of the undertaking is apparent.

It should be carefully noted that the lowest grade enlisted man has received a 400-percent increase in pay when the pay scales of 1908 are compared with the latest pay scales of 1946. The highest grade enlisted man has received approximately a 117-percent increase. In sharp contrast with these high increases for enlisted personnel, the lowest officer grades have received, since 1908, only an increase of about 27 percent in base pay in contrast with the 1908 pay scales, and the base pay of general officers has only been increased 10 percent over the 1908 pay scales.

The bill therefore proposes to equalize to some extent the inadequate and illogical pay scales that have been in existence for these many years. It proposes, for example, to increase the pay and allowances of a major general with 30 years' service by approximately 34 percent. It proposes to increase the pay and allowances of the highest enlisted grade by approximately 30 percent.

Recruits receive no pay increase. The Hook Commission indicated that such personnel receive, when found and clothing are considered, and income of approximately $183 a month compared to a nation-wide industry starting pay average of approximately $178. It is no exaggeration to state that the recruit, comparatively speaking, is the highest paid man in the uniformed services if the theory of pay for rank and responsibility is accepted.

Likewise, it should be noted that the enlisted grade known as recruit, or E-7, is an original entry grade which is usually of very short duration, rarely in excess of 4 months. All other enlisted grades receive pay increases under the proposed bill.

Brigadier generals, under the proposed pay bill, receive the largest increase, approximately 49½ percent. The committee strongly favors this increase. It must be remembered that due to promotion limitations, only the most outstanding colonels and Navy captains can be advanced to this grade—which the Hook Commission found to be commensurate with the highest executive and management level in private industry. For example, of the Navy captains now being considered for promotion to flag rank, only about 15 percent—or 1 in 6—are promoted to this rank. And long before this attrition has eliminated the vast majority of officers.

Salary vs. Responsibility

In private business, when a man is promoted to a position of high responsibility, he receives a salary comparable to his responsibility. The committee believes, now that all promotion laws, at this rank, are based on selection only, that it is desirable and necessary to pay general officers on the basis of the responsibility they must obviously assume.

These are the people who are directly charged with high-level defense planning; these are the officers who lead the brigades, task forces, and air groups if war comes. In their hands the American people place the lives of their sons; it would be comforting to know that such youth are in competent hands—competent because the Congress has taken positive steps to assure the retention of the best potential leaders by providing salaries a little more in keeping with their ability.

Its justification is further exemplified when it is noted that, under existing law, a lieutenant colonel with over 30 years' service receives the identical pay of a brigadier general. And under present pay scales, a major with 30 years' service receives only $69 a month less than a brigadier general.

The entire philosophy of the proposed pay scales rests on the theory of pay for responsibility and rank, and with this the committee is in full accord. There is no longer any justification, for example, for a brigadier general, with the responsibilities of his rank, receiving the same pay as a lieutenant colonel with over 30 years' service. The committee has, therefore, approved the recommendations of the Hook Commission with respect to pay almost in their entirety.

The committee recognizes the fact that we must attract and retain competent personnel for our uniformed services. The present pay scales are apparently not attracting and more obviously not retaining such personnel. Resignations of officers have increased and applications for commissions from well-qualified personnel have decreased sharply. The uniformed services are in direct competition with industry, and we must observe that fact clearly and carefully. World War II proved conclusively that the science of war demands an ever-increasing rate of competence for officers and enlisted personnel alike. Future wars must obviously involve highly complicated technological skills. Jet propulsion, atomic power, radar, electronics, guided missiles, anti-submarine devices, supersonic speed, automatic artillery range finders, proximity fuses, to name just a few, illustrate the war of the future. We must attract and retain the personnel capable of applying these principles of warfare if our Nation is to remain strong. The committee believes the proposed act will go far to achieve these results.

Competent Personnel

Our uniformed services administer a multi-billion-dollar establishment. The annual cost of maintaining this establishment will cost the taxpayer $15,000,000,000 in fiscal 1950. Any private industry of this magnitude would pay their executive and skilled employees wages commensurate with their responsibility. We can do no less—and, when our national defense is considered, it becomes even more apparent that we must not only attract and retain competent personnel, we must attract and retain the best.

We are not doing that today. Since the completion of its integration program, the Army has stressed the procurement of second lieutenants from ROTC college graduates. The qualitative and quantitative results have been discouraging. Particularly difficult to obtain are ROTC college graduates through the distinguished military graduate and competitive tour programs. In 1948, out of 899 distinguished graduates designated for commissions, only 110 accepted. In 1949, out of 1,003 who have been designated, only 7 have accepted to date. While it is hoped that the end of the school year will raise the figure, nevertheless it should be noted that of the 1,003 designated, so far less than 50 percent have expressed even an interest. Reasons for declinations or lack of interest are as follows: Low scale of remuneration compared to responsibility of position; poor career prospects in the military as opposed to civilian occupation; lack of stability as to type of job and location and insufficient individual freedom of action, from the standpoint that an officer is on duty 24 hours a day and cannot resign his position without good and substantial reasons. In the final analysis, the Army is currently losing the services of much high-grade young officer material which is bound to have far-reaching effects in the years to come on the caliber of officers in the Regular Establishment. The military will continue to get less than the best unless we pay for the best.

Navy Officers

The two major sources for the procurement of officers for the Naval Establishment are the Naval Academy and appointments from civilian life via the Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps. Although vacancies exist in the Naval Academy, there is no long-range difficulty anticipated in procuring candidates for the Naval Academy, but the difficulty of retaining the graduates of the Naval Academy is well illustrated by the resignation rates. The total number of resignations from among Naval Academy graduates has reached 643 since 1946, as contrasted with 63 such resignations during the years 1937 through 1940. This is not as significant, however, as the increasing rate. This rate has nearly doubled during the past calendar year, and if continued at its present progression will bring the percentage of resignations from the last three graduating classes—namely, 1945, 1946, and 1947—to approximately 40 percent prior to the completion of 5 years of commissioned service.

Of particular interest is the fact that during the years 1937 through 1940 only 2 commanders resigned as against 28 in the years 1946, 1947, and 1948; 1 lieutenant commander as against 145. These officers had already reached a position where they were to all intents and purposes guaranteed retirement under Public Law 381 with a minimum of 20 years of service. In other ranks above ensign the contrast is even sharper: 9 lieutenants as against 496, and 20 lieutenants (junior grade) as against 363.

The difficulty in procuring and retaining satisfactory officers from sources other than the Naval Academy is perhaps best illustrated by the transfer program. As originally envisioned, the program called for the transfer to the Regular Navy of 6,500 general line officers. The Navy received 7,031 applications from among Reserve and temporary officers who came within the age limits and who were physically qualified. Of these, 4,929 were selected; but only 3,894, or 79 percent, of those selected accepted their appointments. The 2,102 officers whose applications were disapproved failed to meet the educational or service experience requirements. At its peak during the war there were upward of 150,000 general line officers in the Navy, of whom only 7,031 qualified candidates applied for transfer to fill 6,500 vacancies. Of the 3,894 who have been appointed since July 1947,

394, or 15 per cent, have already resigned. Although it cannot be stated that insufficient pay is the only motivating influence for this alarming increase, nevertheless the increased cost of living is the chief measurable difference between the attractiveness of a naval career in the 1930's and today. The hardships and the effect upon normal family life have remained about the same. The rapidly ascending curve of resignations, particularly of those officers who have had from 8 to 10 years of service and who are within sight of retirement, would seem to indicate clearly that the present pay scale is inadequate to compensate for the difficulties of a naval life under present living conditions.

Air Force Experience

The Air Force, prior to the war, was able to exercise a high degree of selectivity in connection with procurement of its officer personnel. Last year, the Air Force launched a vigorous drive to attract specialized college graduates. The response was poor, and of those who were interested enough to apply for commissions, 23 per cent declined when offered Regular commissions. It may well be possible to obtain enough officers by keeping standards low enough; but lowered standards secure bodies, not proper officer material. Only 37 per cent of the 17,000 Regular Air Force officers are college graduates. If present trends continue, and the committee is of the opinion they will unless definite steps are taken to improve the financial attractiveness of the officer career, this percentage will continue to deteriorate. The major source of new officers is through the aviation cadet pilot training program. Last year, 2,629 aviation cadets entered pilot training. Of these, 1.5 per cent were college graduates, while 71 per cent had less than 2 years of college. In contrast, the 5,214 aviation cadets who entered training during the latter part of 1940 included 36.3 per cent college graduates, and but 7 per cent with less than 2 years of college.

The present pay scale is neither adequate in amount for the great majority of personnel in the uniformed services nor properly adjusted by grade. It is not comparable either in terms of total compensation or differentials required for responsibility, in keeping with our traditional and present national industrial practice.

The committee is of the opinion that enactment of the proposed bill will greatly stimulate the obtaining of competent, skilled personnel; and likewise should greatly decrease the alarming exodus from the services that has been going on since the termination of the war.

TITLE ANALYSIS, Title I

Title I of the proposed act contains the definitions used throughout the bill. The only point of significance to be observed in this title is in the definition of the term "dependent" as used in section 102 (g). It should be noted that the term includes a dependent father or mother of a member of the uniformed services, but, for the first time, such parent will be required to actually reside in the household of said member. If an officer or an enlisted man has no person whom he supports other than a father or mother who actually does not reside in his household, he will no longer be able to claim that parent as a dependent. This only becomes important in the question of quarters and travel allowances. But it is believed that this may result in a savings to the Government.

Title II

Title II of the proposed bill contains all of the provisions relating to basic and special pay. Compensation for personnel of the uniformed services proposed by this legislation was constructed primarily on the basis of current wages and salaries paid in industry for comparable responsibility. Industrial rates were obtained initially from the survey conducted by the Advisory Commission on Service Pay, established by the Secretary of Defense, which covered salaries paid in private industry for supervisory and administrative positions. Information was obtained from 21 companies located in the central, north-central, and northeastern part of the United States, which, in the opinion of the Commission, were among the better managed, reputable firms of sufficient size and structure to permit proper comparison with the uniformed services. Job descriptions covering military duties in the eight fields of finance, transportation, construction, communications, selected manufacturing, warehousing, and procurement, armament and mechanical equipment production (ordnance), and shipbuilding were correlated with descriptions used in industry. These fields were employed since exact matches and levels for combat responsibility do not exist, but the Military Establishment has positions similar to those found in industry and responsibilities therefor, particularly with respect to officers. In addition, salaries of professional persons were obtained from separate studies

Armored Cavalry Promotions

The Army this week released details concerning implementation of the Armored Cavalry Career Field—third of the four Combat Career Fields to be introduced officially—and said a similar announcement would be made shortly regarding the Field Engineering Career Field.

Introduction of the Combat Career Fields covering approximately 50 per cent of all Army enlisted personnel will result in thousands of promotions. Specific authorizations for the Infantry, Field Artillery and Armored Cavalry Career Fields are contained, respectively, in SR's 650-207-1, 650-206-1 and 650-202-1.

The Armored Cavalry Career Field will have five job progression ladders as follows: Amphibian Tank, Tank, Armored Reconnaissance, Armored Operations and Armored Intelligence.

The Armored Cavalry Career Field Introductory Special Regulations will contain an annex amending line by line the different tables of organization and equipment containing the Armored Cavalry Career Field positions to introduce the new military occupational specialties and new grades of the Armored Cavalry Career Field jobs. The regrading program has resulted in many revisions to the grades of the Armored Cavalry Career Field jobs. These new grades are amended into the applicable tables of organization and equipment by the annex to the special regulation introducing the Armored Cavalry Career Field. Select 128 for L.D.O.

The Secretary of the Navy has approved the selection of 128 regular Navy personnel for permanent appointment to commissioned grades in the Regular Navy for the performance of Limited Duty in their technical fields.

Names of the men selected will be added to the list of 930 applicants selected in 1948 in the execution of the first annual increment of the program.

Authority of the President to make original appointments in the grades of Lt. (jg) and above for the performance of Limited Duty only will expire on 6 Aug. 1949, unless the proposed amendment to Public Law 381-80th Congress is enacted on or prior to that date.

The proposed amendment, if approved, will permit applicants selected for Limited Duty appointments in the execution of the 1948 and 1949 increments of the Limited Duty program, who are serving as temporary officers, to delay acceptance of Limited Duty appointments, subject to certain provisions until the expiration of the period during which temporary appointments can be held.

The Navy will announce passage or failure of passage of the proposed change to the law as soon as practicable. If the amendment fails of enactment, it will be necessary to make the appointments, not later than 6 Aug. 1949, of those selectees who will be eligible for appointment in the grades of Lt. (jg) and above whose appointments are still pending. Appointments will be forwarded to the selectees concerned with instructions concerning the procedure for acceptance, and with the limitation that they must be accepted or declined within 10 days of receipt by the selectee's commanding officer.

Selectees for the grade of Ensign, who on 6 Aug., will not have become eligible for appointment in the grade of Lt. (jg), may further delay acceptance of LDO appointments since the limitation of law applies only to original appointments in the grade of Lt. (jg) and above.

Commissions for Marine E.M.

Marine Corps commanding officers have been urged by a recent directive to recommend enlisted men and women for appointment to the rank of second lieutenant.

Personnel recommended, according to Marine Corps Memo. No. 36-49, must be citizens of the U. S., physically qualified for regular appointment, and must have a minimum GCT score of 120.

In addition, they must have received a baccalaureate degree from an accredited college; or, pass an educational examination which demonstrates the attainment of education equivalent to a four-year college course.

Men must be at least twenty years of age by 1 Sept. 1949, and women must be at least twenty-one by the same date. Enlisted personnel of the first five pay grades must be less than twenty-seven years of age on 1 July 1949, and male enlisted personnel of the sixth and seventh pay grades must be less than 25 years of age 1 July 1949.

Women must be unmarried.

Successful male applicants will be ordered to the Officer Candidate Screening Course at the Marine Corps Schools prior to 15 July 1949, and successful enlisted women will be ordered to the Women Officers Training Class at M.C.S. prior to 1 Aug., this year.

High Praise for Marines

Rep. James E. Van Zandt (R-Pa.) has told fellow Congressmen that the Marines at Quantico, Va., "are efficiently pursuing their Congressionally assigned mission of developing new methods and techniques of amphibious warfare in a most commendable manner."

Representative Van Zandt was one of a group of Congressmen who witnessed a special demonstration at Quantico last week.

He hailed the use of helicopters in amphibious operations as "the most revolutionary concept in battle method to emerge since the end of the war." He said the Marines have again taken the lead in devising new concepts of war and expressed hope that the Corps will be provided with "sufficient funds to fully develop this new theory of amphibious warfare."

Representative Van Zandt said the effectiveness of Marine air units during the demonstration was remarkable and added that "one cannot see such perfection of close air support of ground troops without being a little bewildered by recent reports of efforts to eliminate Marine aviation. The spirit of teamwork that prevailed in all Marine units in Quantico," he concluded, "is the kind of spirit I hope will one day be instilled in all our Armed Forces."

Former Marine Honored

Gov. Sidney S. McMath of Ark., has received the Legion of Merit for outstanding services as a Marine officer in World War II, presented recently by General C. B. Cates, Commandant of the Marine Corps, at USMC Headquarters.

Governor McMath, a lieutenant colonel in the Marine Corps Reserve, was cited for meritorious conduct as Operations Officer, Third Marines, Third Marine Division, prior to and during operations against enemy Japanese forces on Bougainville, Solomon Islands, 15 Sept. to 17 Dec. 1943.

B-36 Vs. Navy Fighter

The House Armed Services Committee this week called upon Secretary of Defense Louis A. Johnson to conduct tests in which the giant B-36 bomber would be subjected to simulated attacks by selected Navy and Air Force fighter aircraft. The tests would be conducted at heights of 40,000 feet and above.

Chairman Vinson (D. Ga.) said it is time to settle the controversy between B-36 advocates who say it is invulnerable to attack by contemporary fighter planes and antagonists particularly Navy officials—who say the huge bomber can be attacked effectively.

The Committee urged that the tests be conducted by "appropriate authorities" in the Armed Forces.

The text of the Committee's resolution follows:

WHEREAS, there has been extended public discussion and controversy in respect to the combat efficiency of the B-36 bomber; and

WHEREAS, there has been widespread public information that American fighter aircraft are incapable of effective interception of and attack upon the B-36 bomber under combat conditions at high altitudes, and specifically at 40,000 or higher feet; and

WHEREAS, information has been made available to the American public that United States Navy fighter aircraft are capable of effective attack on the B-36 bomber,

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, That it is the sense of the Committee on Armed Services of the House of Representatives that a series of impartial tests should be conducted by appropriate authorities in the Armed Forces to determine the vulnerability of the B-36 bomber while under simulated attack by selected United States Navy and Air Force fighter aircraft; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That promptly after such tests have been completed, the Secretary of Defense, the Secretary of the Navy and the Secretary of the Air Force should appear before the House Committee on Armed Services, with their selected military and civilian assistants, to advise the Committee on Armed Services fully of the results of such tests.

First Marine Division Reunion

Veterans of the First Marine Division, victors at Guadalcanal, Peleliu, and Okinawa, will hold their annual convention this year in the Hotel Astor, New York City, 6, 7, and 8 Aug.

Highlight of the convention will be a special reunion dinner 6 Aug. This get-together will mark the seventh anniversary of Guadalcanal, this nation's first offensive against the Japanese in World War II. All former First Marine Division men who wish to attend, should contact Nat McGraw, 324 Brower Avenue, Rockville Center, Long Island, N. Y.

Evening Dress for Marines

A new Marine evening dress uniform, eliminating many of the costly features of the old uniform, has been adopted by the Marine Corps and approved by the Secretary of the Navy.

Worn for the first time by General Clifton B. Cates, Commandant of the Marine Corps, at the recent Navy Relief Ball, the new uniform is conspicuous by its lack of elaborate ornamentation.

Although closely resembling the old evening dress, the uniform eliminates the ornate sleeve and collar decorations of the former jacket. Simple designs in three officers' grades—company, field, and general—have been substituted.

Also eliminated on the new uniform are shoulder knots, and the black string bow tie. The jacket, previously open at the neck, is now of a closed, standing type, provided with hooks and eyes.

Added to the uniform are two shoulder straps, piped in gold, and attached by a gilt button. The jacket and trousers are dark blue, and are to be worn with a white, two-stud, stiff-bosomed, standing collar shirt, and four-button white vest. The gold and silver Marine Corps insignia will be worn on the collar of the jacket.

Preliminary sketches of the new uniform were made by Capt. Max Taylor, and approval given by a board headed by Maj. Gen. William T. Clement.

did not insist on any changes in the pending bill to cover these proposals. He said he would recommend to the President the appointment of a Presidential Commission to make an across-the-board study of military and civilian retirement systems. He recommended that consideration be given to reducing inactive training pay of personnel of the Reserve components, and suggested that if the gross pay principle were approved retired pay might be computed on the ratio of 1.75 per cent of gross pay for each year of active duty, instead of 2.5 per cent of base pay, as at present.

In its report the committee indicated that it was sympathetic with the principle of contributory retirement, but felt that it should be the subject of a separate study. As to combining pay and allowances for taxation purposes, the committee felt that until this matter has been thoroughly studied in connection with the tax structure of the government it should not be incorporated in a career compensation measure.

In the Senate Chairman Millard F. Tydings (D-Md.), of the Armed Services Committee introduced a pay bill, which corresponds in most particulars with the original House bill, and includes a number of features, such as voluntary and involuntary retirement sections, which were eliminated by the House committee. In introducing the bill Senator Tydings made a brief statement in which he said that the problem of military pay and personnel is one of the most pressing matters facing the Congress. He said:

"Our military machine can be no better than the personnel who man it. The record shows clearly that we have been losing large numbers of competent personnel whom we may vitally need in event of war. Such legislation will aid us in attracting and retaining the high-caliber personnel which we need in these days of highly technical military science and activities."

The Kilday bill came before the House for vote under a rule which provided for one hour's debate on the rule, and three hours on the measure itself, with consideration of amendments under the five-minute rule. When consideration began, Majority Leader John McCormack (D-Mass.), expressed the hope that the bill could be disposed of on Thursday afternoon, so that the House could adjourn until Monday. However, opposition to this course quickly developed.

The debate on the rule took the form of a general debate on the merits of the bill. The opposition was based largely on economy grounds, on the fact that increases were more generous for officers than for enlisted personnel, and on the failure of the bill to contain any contributory retirement feature. At the conclusion of the hour-long debate, the rule was quickly adopted by a voice vote, after which further consideration of the bill was deferred until the following day, when the House met an hour earlier than usual to resume debate on the measure itself, and to consider amendments.

Opposition to the rule for the early consideration of the pay bill was led by Representative Brown. He declared "this bill is one of the most important measures this Congress will be called upon to consider. We should know exactly what it contains. The passage of this bill," he continued, "will incur an annual expenditure of $360,000,000."

"It is true that an item of $400,000,000 for this purpose was included in the President's budget," Representative Brown maintained. "It is also true that the increased cost would not be the full $360,000,000, but somewhat less because of provisions in the bill reducing some of the retirement benefits."

"This bill primarily provides for increases in officers' pay. The benefits for enlisted men," Representative Brown added, "are very very small. There is no increase in the pay for recruits, while the pay of a private is increased only $2.50 per month. At the other extreme, this bill increases the pay of a brigadier general by 49.8 per cent, or $353 per month."

"The pay scales do not tell the complete story. It must be remembered that base pay is not everything. In addition, officers receive many other benefits, such as allowances for sustenance and housing, with a roustabout and a gardener, an automobile with uniformed chauffeur and frequently an airplane, used not only on military duty, but also on pleasure jaunts. Officers also receive medical attention and hospitalization. They are permitted to purchase at post exchanges, sometimes at less than cost, not only for themselves but sometimes for their friends. They can buy all sorts of commodities, including grand pianos and television sets."

"This bill does reduce the benefits for retired personnel, with which I am in accord. However, it does not effect those now on the retired list. Retirement compensation comes without any contribution of the part of military personnel. Persons under the social security system and in Civil Service must contribute towards their retirement. Members of Congress are required to make substantial contributions. The same applies to every other class of public servant with the exception of judicial officers."

Representative Rich asked whether the Armed Services Committee has told us "where are we going to get the money?"

Replying, Representative Brown said that the money was included in the budget estimates. He added, however, that "unless we halt Government spending we are going to be in for serious trouble that may

New Post for Gen. Ginsburg

Brig. Gen. A. Robert Ginsburg, USAF, Special Assistant to the Air Force Director of Public Relations, who served for more than 30 years in the Army, has been transferred to the Office, Secretary of Defense, for duty on special assignments.

General Ginsburg, who served during World War II as G-1, G-3 and G-5 of the Army Services of Supply in the Southwest Pacific Theater, was transferred to the Air Force in May 1948.

It is believed that in his new post he will be one of Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson's top advisers on public relations matters. When Colonel Johnson was Assistant Secretary of War just prior to outbreak of World War II, General Ginsburg, on duty in the office of Industrial Mobilization and Public and Industrial Relations, was an important assistant to him.

Commissioned a second lieutenant in the Coast Artillery Corps of the Regular Army in 1917, General Ginsburg has served also with the Field Artillery and the Judge Advocate General's Department.

In January, 1946, after his wartime service overseas, General Ginsburg was named executive assistant to Secretary of War Patterson. He continued in the same capacity under Secretary of the Army Royall until his transfer to the Air Force. He was made a temporary brigadier general 21 Dec. 1948.

Air Generals Reassigned

The Air Force this week announced the reassignment of six general officers.

Maj. Gen. Lyman P. Whitten, USAF, now assigned to the office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Materiel, will become Commanding General of Newfoundland Base Command, Fort Pepperell, replacing Maj. Gen. Caleb V. Haynes, USAF, who will be assigned to Andrews AFB, Camp Springs, Md., as Inspector General of Military Air Transport Service.

Brig. Gen. Robert F. Travis, USAF, Commanding General of Pacific Air Command, will become Commanding General of Strategic Air Command's Ninth Strategic Reconnaissance Wing at Fairfield-Suisun AFB, Calif.

Brig. Gen. John H. McCormick, USAF, Commanding General of the 3750th Technical Training Wing at Sheppard AFB, Wichita Falls, Tex., will be assigned to the Central Control Group in Washington, D. C., for duty in the office of the Secretary of Defense.

Brig. Gen. Emil C. Kiel, USAF, Commanding General of the 3310th Technical Training Wing at Scott AFB, Ill., will replace General McCormick.

Brig. Gen. John F. McBlain, USAF, Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations at Headquarters of the U. S. Air Forces in Europe, Wiesbaden, Germany, will replace General Kiel.

U. S. AIR FORCE

AF Promotions Planned

A selection board was convened at Air Force Headquarters this week to consider approximately 2330 officers for promotion to the permanent grade of captain.

Air Force policy is to delay disclosure of board membership until deliberations are completed.

Among the officers with date of rank as permanent first lieutenants from 1 July 1946 or earlier and who will complete seven years' promotion list service prior to 1 July 1950 are 46 who were passed over by a previous selection board.

That board, which met last December, actually deferred the promotion of 50 permanent first lieutenants, but subsequently four have been separated from the Service.

If any of the remaining 46 officers should be passed over a second time, the law requires that they be eliminated from the Air Force.

Air Force officials report that no promotions will be made before 1 July and will be effected as eligible officers complete seven years' promotion list service.

At the same time, the following promotion developments were also revealed by Air Force officials:

1. A list of approximately 1600 officers to be promoted to the temporary rank of captain is slated for release this month. These officers have been selected by respective Air Force commands from a total eligibility list of about 9000. The list originally had been scheduled for release in April, but was delayed.

2. A selection board to consider approximately 7500 officers for about 700 promotions to the temporary grade of major will convene at USAF Headquarters about 15 June.

3. Additional boards are scheduled tentatively to convene in the Fall to consider permanent promotions to general officer grades and to the grade of colonel. The number of officers to receive these promotions has not been disclosed.

Lockheed Fighter Tested

The Lockheed XF-90, the Air Force's newest jet penetration fighter, started its taxi tests this week at Lockheed's Burbank, Calif., plant. The XF-90, designed as a penetration fighter to operate deep within enemy territory against enemy aircraft and ground targets, is powered by two turbo-jet engines.

Employing 35 degrees for wing sweep-back, the XF-90 has a span of approximately 40 feet, a length of about 55 feet, and a height of approximately 15 feet. It has a design gross weight of about 25,000 pounds. Extensive flight test data were obtained through the use of six steel and plastic models of the XF-90 which were dropped from high-flying aircraft, the descent being studied by radar and radio-recording.

tions. Among the many combined activities supporting these "JANAFEXes", the Hawaiian Sea Frontier has provided anti-submarine patrol while fighter planes from this Command have provided cover air protection for Navy task forces during sorties to and from Pearl Harbor. The sinking of the two atomic bomb target battleships, New York and Nevada, provided realistic opportunities for joint exercises in 1948.

Another mission of the Pacific Air Command is the training and maintenance of its search and rescue units for the purpose of locating and aiding military aircraft and personnel in distress. One of the many search and rescue missions of these units was that for the C-54 aircraft which was ditched approximately 400 miles southwest of Johnston Island, early in the morning of 5 Dec., 1948, while en route from Kwajalein to Hawaii. The accomplishment of rescuing 33 of 37 personnel who were aboard the aircraft at the time of ditching was favorably commented upon by The Secretary of the Air Force.

The Pacific Air Command has been assigned the mission of furnishing logistical support and housekeeping for the Military Air Transport Service at Johnston Island and Hickam Air Force Base, as well as providing servicing, inspection and maintenance of transient and staging aircraft and facilities for transient crews at the latter base.

One of our major problems has been the rehabilitation of Johnston Island in connection with its supervision and logistical support. This tiny island, which was transferred from Navy to Air Force jurisdiction in July 1948, was originally a barren wasteland, with no trees, no grass and no fresh water. In order to administer and support the activities carried on in that area it became necessary to operate an entire "city" in itself. Personnel, supplies and equipment were transported by air and water. Buildings and facilities, which had deteriorated badly following the war, were renovated, repaired, and made serviceable. A new school system and post exchange were established, and many other base facilities expanded to accommodate personnel and their families.

The shortage of drinking water presented a serious problem. Fresh water had to be manufactured by evaporation of sea water, and then chlorinated. This was a slow process which necessitated limiting the daily consumption to a fraction of normal usage. With the installation of an additional distillation unit and two portable chlorinators, the supply of drinking water was increased considerably. However, due to old lines as yet unreplaced, it is still necessary to limit the use of fresh water to daylight hours only in order to provide an adequate reserve for emergencies.

Aviation gasoline has presented a storage problem, due to leaks in the war-time built system; however, constant steps have been taken to remedy this situation, as well as many other problems and breakdowns which previously necessitated almost hourly emergency work. With the rehabilitation and improvement of facilities at this small, yet strategic Pacific outpost, Johnston Island is now a smoothly running and valuable Air Force base.

We place great emphasis on the value of a higher education for Air Force personnel. Keen interest has developed through the Centralized Airmen's Information Program inaugurated at Hickam Air Force Base in September 1948. With bona fide school instructors and a definite objective in mind, and through an intensive publicity campaign, attendance at this school increased from .8 per cent to 24.6 per cent within eight weeks. As a matter of comparison, the percentage of Air Force personnel attending all schools in overseas areas increased 8.2 per cent between October and December 1948; while this Command's increase was approximately three times this figure, leading all other commands in percentage of increase. In the series of USAFI off-duty courses which was started November 8, 1948, at Hickam, 312 of the 502 military service personnel attending were from this Command. Of 261 PacAirCom personnel examined so far through USAFI Educational Qualification Tests and General Educational Development Tests, 125 have qualified as high school graduates, and 136 as college freshmen.

Inspection proficiency has resulted in bringing a majority of units and activities of this Command to a point where they have received efficiency ratings of Excellent or better. The Air Inspection system has been re-established in accord with the new concept promulgated by Headquarters, USAF, of focusing attention on the unit's capacity to perform its mission, rather than being concerned with minor discrepancies and irregularities.

The Air Force is looking with favor upon a proposal to widen and extend the existing taxi-way to the Honolulu Municipal Airport, which, if acceptable, will provide Hickam with a 17,000-foot runway—the longest in the world.

Because of the position of the Hawaiian Islands in the Pacific, they will always remain a stepping stone for the movement of troops and supplies to the Far East.

USAF Interceptor Fighter

The Air Force's first interceptor-designed jet fighter, the Republic XF-91, successfully completed its first test flight 9 May at Muroc AFB, Calif., remaining aloft for 40 minutes.

Designed as an interceptor fighter to be used as a local defense weapon capable of combating enemy bombers and such missiles that come within its range and capabilities, the XF-91 is manufactured by the Republic Aircraft Corporation at Farmingdale, N. Y. The interceptor is designed to utilize rocket motors for accelerated takeoff and climb and for operation at high altitudes, but the rockets are not being used in early flight testing.

Powered by a J-47 turbo-jet engine rated at 5,000 pounds thrust, the XF-91 is the first USAF aircraft to employ inverse wing taper, the wing tips being wider than the wing root. A new feature is employed in the main landing gear, two wheels in tandem being located under each wing. A conventional nose gear is used.

The wing and tail surfaces of the XF-91 are swept back. It has a wing span of approximately 30 feet, a length of about 45 feet, and a height of approximately 13 feet.

Housing for Randolph AFB

Bids for the construction of 56 housing units at Randolph AFB, Tex., to cost about $1,130,000, are expected to be opened late next month at the San Antonio sub-office of the Galveston Army Engineer District. A total of $10,485,200 will be expended at various Air Force bases and Army installations in Texas to provide housing for married personnel.

You'll get special attention from Army and Navy Journal advertisers—they cater to Service personnel.

House Considers Pay

interfere with our way of life."

Representative Paul J. Kilday (D-Tex.), chairman of the House Armed Services subcommittee on pay legislation, replied briefly to Representative Brown. He began by asking whether the members of Congress knew the total pay and allowances of General Clay. He said that General Clay's base pay was $8800, with a special allowance of $2200 and that if we added his total quarters and rations allowance, his aggregate compensation would be only $12,440. He said that some employees of the House are paid practically the same amount.

Continuing, Representative Kilday pointed out that there are a number of provisions in the bill which will result in substantial savings to the Government. He said:

"At present we pay every person retired for physical disability 75 per cent of their base pay for life, with no reexamination. We are paying $314,000,000 family allowances to officers and enlisted men on the basis of the number of children they have. We cannot afford to continue that. Under the bill now being considered we base the retired pay on percentage of actual disability with reexamination over a period of five years. These and other changes will ultimately save millions of dollars. We will save $190,000,000 a year in family allowances alone. If we consider these savings and the amount of income tax recaptured from military personnel, the net increase involved in this bill will be only about 8 per cent."

In response to a question as to why the suggestions of the Bureau of the Budget were not included in this bill, Representative Kilday replied that "from the beginning the Director of the Budget has attempted to write this bill, but the Committee declined to accept all of his suggestions."

Speaking in behalf of the bill, Rep. James Wadsworth (R-N.Y.), asserted that he has had a "very deep interest in this problem for many years." He added:

"How are we going to get distinguished young men to come into the Service unless we provide adequate inducement? The present officers who are heading the Armed Services have greatly distinguished themselves. However, we have to look to the future. How are we going to get young recruits for our officers' corps who will be the generals and admirals of 25 or 30 years from now? I am very much disturbed with the statement in the committee's report with reference to the failure to secure ROTC graduates for the Regular Services. We are failing desperately in this respect. In 1948, a total of 899 distinguished college graduates from ROTC courses were offered commissions in the Army. Only 110 accepted. This seems pretty serious, but look at 1949, only seven accepted. Why don't they come in? They cannot afford to or think they can not afford to enter the Service. This is an exceedingly serious situation."

Continuing, Representative Wadsworth said, "I am not so much interested in the pay of an ensign or second lieutenant, but I am very interested in the future prospects of those who accept commissions." He referred to the many resignations of U. S. Naval Academy graduates since the war. The New York legislator said the bill might well be considered an "economy measure, as those who come in will develop into the stature of the military personnel of today."

5. Rapid expansion of our submarine fleet and accelerated development of anti-submarine vessels and equipment, with continued experimentation and construction of new naval types.
6. Organization and training of a balanced Mobile Ground Force, of sufficient strength and ready, with complete modern equipment, for immediate action in a National Emergency.
7. Liberal compensation for disability and service retirement of officers and enlisted men, with provision for retirement in highest grade satisfactorily held at any time.
8. Death benefits for survivors of military personnel based on today's higher living costs.
9. Increase in per diem allowances to compensate personnel for all expenses incurred while traveling on official duty.
10. Provision for the education of the children of Service personnel on active duty without expense where free public schools are not available.
11. Reimbursement for use of private automobiles on official business.
12. Close supervision and constant restudy of Service promotion and elimination policies to assure the prevention and prompt correction of injustices and inequities.
13. Continued scientific research and development in all new and unconventional methods of warfare, including atomic, biological, and radiological weapons, guided missiles and psychological warfare. Close liaison with industry and labor as elements of the National Defense team.
14. Development and improvement of the organization and training of the National Guard, Organized Reserves, and other civilian components, with proper inactive training pay and appropriate training facilities for all elements.

UNITED States Senator Ralph E. Flanders of Vermont has inserted in the Congressional Record a comparison between the salaries of military personnel and those of civilian employees of the Government, for the purpose of showing that those in the Uniformed Services receive substantially greater compensation than civil service workers. He accompanies the comparison with a Budget Bureau analysis of proposed military pay increases. Of course, any comparison between the pay of Government civilian employees and that of military personnel is necessarily fallacious, because the duties and responsibilities of these two classes of public servants are not comparable. Military officers and enlisted men are serving the Government for the single purpose of providing the armed defense of the nation. All their time belongs to the government. When necessary they work around the clock, with no thought of overtime pay or compensatory leave. Often their duties, in peace as in war, are extremely hazardous. Twenty-seven American airmen were killed in the highly successful Berlin airlift, a peacetime military operation. Military personnel go where they are sent, often at great personal inconvenience, expense and hardship. Rarely does an officer remain at the same station more than two or three years. The wear and tear on furniture and other belongings, the difficulties of adjusting the family to new quarters, new surroundings, and new schools can be appreciated by every householder. Often those on sea duty and foreign service are separated from their families for long periods. Naturally there always has been, and their always should be, a differential between the salaries of military personnel and those of civilian employees, who normally are assigned to duty in the same community throughout their career, with overtime pay for extra duty, and with rare exceptions not exposed to special occupational hazards. Military personnel are subject to special laws, discipline and restrictions, not applicable to civilians. Because of these inconveniences and hazards, and in many cases because of heavier responsibilities there has been a difference between the pay of military and civilian personnel, but this differential has been narrowing. Since 1945 the average pay of civilian employees has been increased by 45.7 per cent. There has been no comparable increase in military pay or allowances during that period. For all but one of the commissioned grades—that of second lieutenant—the percentage increase in pay and allowances since 1908 is much less than civilian employees have received in the last four years. Indeed in the past few months military personnel of all ranks have received a substantial cut in take home pay by reason of the expiration of certain military exemptions from Federal income taxes. The proposed increase in military compensation has been approved by the President of the United States, the Secretary of Defense, the Bureau of the Budget, and the unanimous vote of 28 members of the House Military Affairs Committee. When Senator Flanders carefully examines the Hook report and the transcript of testimony taken by the House Committee he will undoubtedly appreciate the urgent necessity for prompt Congressional action to give the Services the long overdue pay raises.

ONE hundred and thirty years ago on 22 May 1819 the SS Savannah started on her historic voyage to be the first steam-propelled ship ever to cross the Atlantic. This American innovation is commemorated tomorrow as National Maritime Day, which opens World Trade Week. The occasion serves as an opportunity to press for the development of a long-range program for the expansion of our Merchant Marine and our world trade. The maintenance of a large American merchant fleet is essential to National Security. Any future conflict will be world-wide in scope and sea lanes must be kept open to vessels transporting troops and supplies to distant shores and carrying critical and strategic materials to war industries in the United States. Modern hostile submarines of the most deadly type will attempt to close these seaways. Only the swiftest and most efficient merchantmen can be reasonably sure to run such a gauntlet in safety. In 1939, prior to the war, our merchant fleet consisted of 9,309,000 deadweight tons; today it is 16,632,000 tons. Under the stimulus of war merchant vessels were built, designed primarily for speed of construction, rather than efficient operation. Many of these have been scrapped or laid up, and many others should be replaced. Post-war trade demands the most modern carriers. Western Europe's recent rapid recovery from the devastation of war is now being reflected in the expansion of foreign trade. Continuance of American prosperity necessitates our large-scale participation in this trade. American cargoes in American bottoms can find markets in far-distant ports. Return loads of supplies of foreign origin essential to our economy and security may be brought back to America. For the acquisition and retention of our share of this international trade Government assistance and encouragement should be freely given to our Merchant Marine, so that it may continue to serve our country in peace and, if necessary, in war.

Letters to the Editor

Letters expressing individual views and intended for publication should be accompanied by the name and address of the writer, not necessarily for publication, but as evidence of good faith. If the writer desires to omit his name when the letter is published, he should so state. The ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL may find it necessary to use only extracts from longer letters in order that more viewpoints may be represented.

Retirement Procedure

Editor, ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL:

Your item on page 1038, 7 May 1949 issue, concerning the retirement problems of enlisted men on duty as officers, necessitating that they revert to enlisted status, is one of those policies of the service which causes delay and embarrassment, and tends to have an effect on morale and which unquestionably should be subject to re-examination. I intend to ask for retirement on or about 12 Nov. 1949. At that time I will have completed 28 years of active service as an enlisted man and commissioned officer. My present grade is Major, AUS.

Existing regulations permit me to retire as Master Sergeant due to my having served as a commissioned officer. To retire, it is necessary that I make request for relief from active duty and, upon its approval, proceed to the nearest post, camp or station, re-enlist in the grade of Master Sergeant and await two or three months for approval. Upon notification of approval I then go through the process of being discharged from the Army as a Master Sergeant, and on the following day am required to re-enlist again in the Enlisted Reserve Corps for the remaining period, until I have served a total of 30 years, and then make application for appointment in the highest commissioned grade held, and pay thereof, in the Organized Reserve Corps, which in my case is Lieutenant Colonel. Not including the tremendous amount of paper work involved to accomplish retirement, there are certainly unnecessary pay losses, embarrassment and an effect on morale.

In categories such as mine, why should not it be possible that regulations require me to make my request for retirement 90 days previous to the time I have selected to retire (12 Nov. 1949), while in my present grade and present assignment. This would permit ample time for the processing of necessary papers and check of service, etc. Under this provision, I could serve in my present status and station, until such time as I was informed that I was retired, effective ———. In the grade of Lieutenant Colonel, ORC, with the pay of Master Sergeant, until such period of time as I will have completed 30 years.

Major, TC, AUS

"Last Long Mile"

Editor, ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL:

I not only speak for myself but for hundreds of other AUS officers when I say that we are most grateful to you for your stand on "the last long mile." It does seem a rank injustice, and certainly is a damage to morale to say nothing of embarrassment and humiliation, when a temporary officer has to revert back to his enlisted or W.O. grade in order to retire.

According to present regulations, if I should make application for retirement I would revert back immediately to my permanent grade of W.O. and then wait for 3 or 4 months with the resultant loss of assignment, pay and rank, for that length of time. Even though it might come to pass that I would in some miraculous way retain the assignment, I would certainly feel that I should make it known at the next few assemblies why I was a Lt. Col. "yesterday" and a Warrant Officer "today." Frankly, I don't believe the Department of the Army wants it this way.

It is my belief that a study of this situation will convince the authorities that it would be beneficial, both to the Government and to the individual himself to change the regulations so that those who are eligible for retirement may apply and then stay on the job to which he is assigned—in his commissioned rank—until such time as he is retired.

Just a Stoooge

I am the copilot. I sit on the right. I'm not important. Just part of the flight. I never talk back lest I have regrets. But I have to remember what the pilot forgets.

I make out the flight plan and study the weather. Pull up the gear and stand by to feather. Make out the forms and do the reporting. And fly the old crate when the pilot's courting.

I take the readings, adjust the power, Handle the flaps and call the tower. Tell him where we're at the darkest nights, And do all the work without any lights.

I call for my pilot and buy him Cokes, I always laugh at his corny jokes. And once in a while when his landings are rusty, I come through with "Gawd, but it's gusty."

All in all, I'm a general stoooge, I sit on the right of the man I call Scrooge. I guess you think I'm not understanding. But maybe someday he'll give ME a landing. —Tailspinner

National defense vitally affects the whole country. It should be too big a question to be mixed up in partisan politics. When the day comes that one party can be credited with being for and the other with being opposed, it will be the beginning of the end of our power.

We are creating a new Army, substantially, and it should be organized on correct principles. Our officers should be trained to assume the responsibilities belonging to their position, instead of being treated like school boys kept constantly in leading strings.

85 Years Ago

The present leader of the American Armies seems sternly urgent to try the virtue of fighting and to trust to weight of metal and of numbers. Such a disposition will commend itself to all who have never stomachached the silly and insolent affectation of underrating the intrepidity of Northern soldiers. Remembering the thoroughness proposed in this latest and most comprehensive campaign, let us not exhibit undue impatience at its continuance.

U. S. COAST GUARD

FOLLOWING two years' delay due to late deliveries of critical items, the installation of machinery and equipment aboard Lightship 99 is being completed at the Coast Guard Yard, Md. The vessel is an automatic lightship capable of performing all functions of such a craft without any personnel on board.

Items not completely automatic in operation can be controlled from shore by personnel carrying out other duties such as lifeboat station lookouts, Coast Guard officials explain. After work at the Yard is completed, the vessel will undergo a two-month reliability test at dockside and following that a one-month to three-month experimental test will be conducted at sea.

Lt. Estey Convicted

Lt. Roland H. Estey, 31, officer of the watch aboard the Coast Guard Cutter Eastwind when that vessel collided with the tanker Gulfstream off the New Jersey coast on 19 Jan., has been found guilty of two of four charges by a court-martial at Boston, Mass. Capt. T. Y. Awalt, chief defense counsel, said the case will be reviewed at Coast Guard Headquarters. No announcement of sentence was to be made before that review is completed.

Thirteen Coast Guardsmen were killed and 20 others were injured in the collision. Capt. John A. Glynn was in command of the Eastwind at the time of the accident.

Enlisted Men Promoted

Coast Guard Headquarters has announced the promotion of the following enlisted personnel to the rank of chief petty officer. These men were disgraced on 1 July 1946 during the retrenchment program and now have been readvanced:

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Foreign Affairs—Thursday was Clay Day in Washington. General Lucius D. Clay, hero of the cold war, returned home to receive the welcome of the President, cabinet officers, and both Houses of Congress. The determined American commander, who conceived and directed the miraculously successful airlift that kept more than two million people of Berlin alive for nearly a year, and thereby completely defeated the Russian hunger blockade, was decorated by the President and acclaimed by his countrymen. He will retire from the Army in ten days and enjoy a well earned rest at his home in Georgia.

The President has announced the appointment of John J. McCloy to serve as a civilian High Commissioner of Germany, in accordance with an agreement with France and Great Britain, whereby each of these powers agreed to replace its Military Governor with a civilian High Commissioner. The duties of the new Commissioner will encompass many of those previously performed by General Clay. However, under the new arrangement the local German government recently formed at Bonn will be given considerable autonomy, so that the duties of the High Commissioners will be largely supervisory, and will be restricted mainly to foreign affairs and international trade.

The new American High Commissioner is now president of the World Bank, and was formerly Assistant Secretary of War. He is a distinguished lawyer and a veteran of World War I, having served in France as a captain of field artillery.

At a White House reception General Clay was awarded the second Oak Leaf Cluster to his Distinguished Service Medal. Subsequently he was received by the House and Senate and accorded the unusual privilege of addressing each body. He told the members of Congress that the only hope for a peaceful world is to encourage the flame of democracy recently kindled in Germany.

At a press conference General Clay was decidedly optimistic as to the immediate future of Europe. He said that the failure of the Berlin blockade had caused a complete reorientation of the German policy of Russia, a marked lessening of the immediate tension, and some measure of temporary cooperation with the west. He would not predict how long this condition would prevail, but said that he would be greatly surprised if the blockade were reimposed. In his opinion we are inclined to think that Russia is more immune from the effect of world public opinion than she is. He considered it unlikely that Russia would risk incurring world disapproval by again imposing a blockade.

General Clay said that the fears of Russia which existed in Western Europe two years ago have been largely allayed. Factors that contributed to this end, he said, included the success of the airlift, the lifting of the blockade, the European Recovery Program, and, above all, the signing of the Atlantic Security Pact.

The Soviet government, General Clay believes, would like a unified Germany in the hope that it would form a buffer state with which it could bargain. He does not look for any alliance between Russia and a united Germany. If such an alliance should ever take place, he said, it would mean that the western nations had failed to accept Germany in the comity of democratic states. Communist leaders, he said, had urged western Germans not to adopt a constitution and form a separate government, but their pleas were rejected.

General Clay believes our occupation troops should remain in Germany until there is a stable Europe. He said he would personally be worried if we withdrew these forces. Their presence in Europe he regards as essential. The Russians, he said, maintain a German police force in the Soviet zone of from 100,000 to 200,000 men, similar to the force maintained by Hitler for a like purpose. This force is recruited from much the same elements as the Brown Shirts and S.S. formations of the Nazi regime, but is composed for the most part of young men. He doubts if it will play as important a role as originally expected, as its members have a great fear of the German people. So far as can be learned this force is lightly armed, though there have been unconfirmed rumors that it was also equipped with heavy and automatic weapons.

The general was greatly interested in election results from the Soviet zone, where the uncontested Communist slate received only two-thirds of the votes cast. Soviet authorities, counting on a 90 to 95 per cent victory, were bitterly disappointed and openly threatened reprisals against those who dared vote against the official candidates. They blamed the heavy opposition vote on the influence of "lying western propaganda." There was only one ticket and no opposition campaign. Nevertheless out of 12,000,000 valid ballots more than four million negative votes were cast. Some 800,000 others registered their disapproval by deliberately invalidating their ballots. General Clay commented that it must be obvious that a protest ballot in a police state, amounting to one-third of the electorate, is an evidence of considerable courage.

It is understood that the Russians had hoped to present to the Council of Foreign Ministers, meeting in Paris next week, a demonstration of Communist solidarity in Eastern Germany as evidenced by the expected almost unanimous approval of the voters in this election. Instead it will be difficult to advance a satisfactory explanation for the heavy protest vote of the Germans.

Representatives of the four powers have been meeting in Paris this week arranging for the opening of the conference on Monday. Preliminary meetings have also been held by American, French and British delegations, which are likely to present a solid front on all matters relating to the future of Germany and Austria that may come up for discussion. Concrete proposals for a unified Germany, and for reduction or withdrawal of occupation troops are expected from Russia. The Soviet Union also will insist on participation in the management of the Ruhr industries and in the disposal of their products. The vexing German currency question is certain to receive an airing. Final settlement of all of these problems is not expected, but there is some hope that an agreement on some of the basic principles may be reached, opening the way for further negotiations.

The sessions of the General Assembly of the United Nations at Lake Success came to a close this week, after transacting considerable business in the final days. Israel was admitted as a member, over the sharp opposition of the Moslem states. By a narrow margin the General Assembly declined to rescind its previous resolution, requesting withdrawal of ambassadors and ministers from Spain. The vote was 26 to 15 in favor of repeal, with many states, including the United States and Great Britain, abstaining from voting. Since a two-thirds vote was necessary for repeal, the resolution remains in force.

Several American senators, including Chairman Tom Connally of the Foreign Relations Committee, and Arthur H. Vandenberg, ranking minority member, took sharp issue with the administration stand on the Spanish question. They insisted that it was inconsistent to accord full diplomatic recognition to the Communist dictatorships of Russia and her satellites and to withhold it from the Franco government of Spain. Secretary of State Dean Acheson, however, characterized the Spanish government as a Fascist dictatorship, and said that this country could not advocate a repeal of the United Nations resolution until fundamental human rights were restored to the Spanish people. A Spanish request for a large American loan was rejected by the Export-Import Bank, not on political grounds, but as a poor economic risk.

In the closing moments of the Lake Success meeting the General Assembly debated the long and highly inflammatory dispute over the disposition of the former Italian African colonies. A compromise which had been worked out by Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin of Great Britain and Count Carlo Sforza was beaten. The key vote was on assigning the trusteeship of Tripolitania to Italy in 1951. This failed by a single vote. The vote was 33 to 17 in favor of the measure, but it lacked a single vote of the necessary two-thirds. This action was followed by a revolt of the Latin American countries, which joined the Arab states in denouncing the compromise which was then voted down by a vote of 14 in favor to 37 against.

The seizure of Communist Gerhardt Eisler on board a Polish vessel at Southampton, England, by British authorities has stirred a flurry of protests. Eisler, under prison sentence in America for perjury and contempt, jumped his bail and fled as a stowaway on the Polish ship. At the request of American authorities, British police forcibly removed him from the vessel, over the loud protests of the Polish ambassador. He is now in jail in London awaiting a hearing on an extradition warrant. In the meantime his bail of $20,000 has been declared forfeited by an American court.

America this week welcomed to its national capital President Eurica Gaspar Dutra of Brazil, who is returning a visit made by President Truman to Brazil in 1947. Hundreds of thousands of Washington citizens cheered the distinguished visitor as he arrived on Wednesday. On Thursday he addressed a Joint Session of Congress. President Dutra plans to spend ten days in the United States, visiting New York and other sections of the country.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has completed its hearings on the North Atlantic Security Treaty and is expected to recommend its ratification by practically a unanimous vote. The treaty will probably be reported to the Senate by the committee in the near future, but it seems probable that floor action will be deferred for about a month, while consideration is being given to domestic legislation.

OSD Civilian Components Office—Consideration is being given to the establishment within the Office of the Secretary of Defense of a special office to supervise all civilian component activities in the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps. It is understood that Col. Louis Renfrow, an assistant to Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson, conferred this week with ranking military and naval officials concerning creation of such an office. Presumably, if Secretary Johnson approves these plans, an office analogous to the Section V Committee of the Army, which handles Reserve and National Guard affairs, would be established, but with much wider authority. At the present time, Lt. Gen. Elwood Quesada, USAF, directs Reserve activities for the Air Force. His opposite number for the Army is Maj. Gen. Charles W. Ryder. Reserve head for the Navy is Rear Adm. Ralph S. Riggs, while Maj. Gen. Merwin H. Silverthorn holds a similar post in the Marine Corps.

Foreign Naval Note—The Admiralty revealed this week that Britain is building eight aircraft carriers at a total cost of $240,000,000. The disclosure came during debate in Parliament when a member asked Mr. John Dugdale, Admiralty financial secretary, if he were aware that the United States has abandoned construction of the super-carrier. Mr. Dugdale said he was, but reminded that the U. S. Navy is retaining a large number of other carriers.

General Officer Selection List—The appointment of Maj. Gen. Abram Franklin Kibler for permanent promotion to that rank—the third officer to be promoted to permanent major general in the continued absence of an approved promotion list—this week aroused new interest in the controversy attending the President's refusal to make public the results of the selection board convened early this year. Previously, Maj. Gen. Stanley L. Scott and Maj. Gen. R. R. Allen had been named to be permanent major generals.

Further, early retirements of General Lucius D. Clay and Maj. Gen. Wilton B. Persons will give the Army the opportunity to promote at least two more officers to the permanent rank of major general.

Appointment of Brig. Gen. Ernest M. Brannon as a brigadier general, Regular Army, reduces to six the number of officers remaining on the old promotion list, compiled last year, for advancement to that rank.

When, if ever, the list submitted by a board of ranking officers, headed by Lt. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem, Commanding General, Third Army, would be released by the White House remained uncertain late this week. Senator Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), chairman of the subcommittee of the Senate Armed Services Committee which was named to investigate the promotion eligibility list, visited the White House this week. Later, he said the President was merely holding up the list until a new Secretary of the Army was appointed and had time to review the report. The list had been prepared before the resignation of former Secretary Kenneth C. Royall, who approved the board's findings and transmitted the recommendations to the President. It was reported also this week that the President had sent a communication to Senator Tydings (D-Md.) regarding the promotion list, but the contents of that letter were not made public.

AF Officer Ruling—The Judge Advocate General of the Air Force has ruled that under provisions of the Officer Personnel Act of 1947, the Secretary of the Air Force, if he determines that there is an excess number of permanent colonels or lieutenant colonels who have completed 30 years service, could convene a board of general officers to recommend retirements. An ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL survey showed this week that at the present time the Air Force is authorized 1588 permanent colonels, but has only 564 on duty. A total of 2775 Air Force permanent lieutenant colonels is authorized and 1470 are on duty.

Army Finance Department—Lt. Col. John M. Parker, FD, recently graduated from the Air Force Comptroller's School at Craig Field, Ala., has returned to the Office of the Chief of Finance for duty. Capt. Melvin E. Richmond, FD, previously on duty in the Atlanta FOUSA, reported this week for duty in the Management Division, OCF. Visitors in the OCF during the week included: Col. John B. Hess, Comptroller, Fifth Army, who was on temporary duty in Washington on budget and other matters; Col. William Schiff, FD-Res., Wartime Finance Officer of the Second Service Command; Col. Frank Holmes, FD-Ret., and Maj. Charles F. Layton, FD, who is enroute to EUCOM from his previous assignment as assistant to Lt. Colonel Kelly Brazier, FOUSA, Seattle, Wash.

What Next for "Vittles" Activities—Although no official announcement is expected until after the Conference of Foreign Ministers, which opens at Paris, there was speculation this week as to how the Armed Forces would deploy equipment and personnel utilized in "Operations Vittles," the successful project which moved 1,589,567 tons into blockaded Berlin from 26 June 1948 to 12 May.

Presumably, the Air Force, Army, Navy, and Marine Corps have completed detailed plans for shifting units assigned to the Berlin Airlift, but are withholding such announcement until the delicate diplomatic negotiations are completed. Should the Paris conference result in the clear determination that the airlift has finished its task, major movements may be anticipated.

The Army has had hundreds of its officers and enlisted men engaged in ground support for the airlift. Doubtless numbers of these would be made available for assignments with combat units. The Army continually is seeking to place more and more men with its combat units, particularly since budget revisions forced a reduction from 12 to 10 divisions.

The Navy has had about 800 officers and men assigned directly to the airlift. Squadrons VR-6 and VR-8 were dispatched from Pacific bases to Germany for the critical assignment. Other Navy planes, based at Patuxent, Md., flew the Atlantic in support of "Operations Vittles." It is interesting to note that it was a Navy squadron, VR-8, which set the all-time airlift record of 155 per cent efficiency. Navy Ground Control Approach crews worked side by side with Air Force specialists during the last weeks of the operation.

Further, the Navy will now be able to divert some of its 21 tankers which delivered approximately 121,000,000 gallons of gasoline to Germany in the "sealift" phase of "Operations Vittles."

Marine Corps flyers of Transport Squadron 352, based in the Hawaiian Islands, also were ordered to Germany for airlift duties. The likelihood is that its 15 R5D aircraft will be returned to duties in support of the Fleet Marine Force.

It is expected that as the situation in Europe permits, scores of Air Force C-54's will be returned to their normal Military Air Transport Service runs. The Pacific Division has been operating on a curtailed schedule throughout the airlift and likewise the Continental Division has been forced to reduce its activity.

In its report recommending passage of the Pay Bill the House Armed Services Committee called attention to the amount of additional revenue the Government is now receiving by reason of the recent expiration of tax exemptions for Service personnel, and the increased amounts that will be paid into the Treasury in taxes under the new pay rates.
 The committee pointed out that the total amount of income tax from Service personnel during the calendar year 1948 was $19 million. With the termination of tax exemptions on 1 Jan. 1949 it is estimated that tax payments, based on present pay rates, during the current year will increase to $149 million, a net increase of $130 million over last year. If the new pay scales are enacted the annual income taxes paid by Service men will be increased to $219 million, or $200 million more than the Government received from this source in 1948. This means that fully one-half of the proposed $400 million annual cost of the proposed pay increases will be immediately recoverable in tax returns.

As the committee put it in its report to the House:

"At a time when pay in every other field has had some upward revision to meet these living costs, every officer and enlisted man has taken a pay reduction during the current year. This has been due to the removal of the income tax exemptions, which have in effect reduced the military take-home pay roll by $130,000,000—this being the annual amount of additional tax now being withheld by the Government."

The committee in its report stressed the need for adequate pay to attract and retain the best qualified personnel, particularly in the commissioned ranks. Recently resignations of officers have increased and applications for commissions have sharply declined. In 1948 out of 899 distinguished college graduates designated for commissions as Army officers, only 110 accepted. In 1949, out of 1,003 so designated only seven have accepted to date, and of the remainder far less than 50 per cent have expressed even an interest.

Among the reasons given for declinations and lack of interest were low remuneration, poor career prospects as compared with civilian positions, lack of stability as to type of job and location, and insufficient individual freedom of action.

The total number of resignations from among Annapolis graduates serving as Naval officers has reached 643 since 1946, as contrasted with 63 such resignations from 1937 through 1940. Of 3,894 Naval officers appointed from sources other than Annapolis since July 1947, 594, or 15 per cent, have resigned.

The Air Force launched a vigorous drive to attract specialized college graduates to apply for Regular commissions. The response was poor, but of those who did apply and were offered commissions 23 per cent declined to accept.

In its report the committee expressed its support of the principle of contributory retirement, favored by the President and the Director of the Budget, but opposed by the Hook Commission. However, the committee took the position that it should be the subject of a special and separate study.

With respect to the President's recommendation that pay and tax-free allowances be combined and treated as a single item of gross pay, all subject to Federal income tax, the committee found that the proposal presents so many perplexing problems that it should be determined by a committee studying taxation, and should not be a part of a career compensation act, until the framework of the tax structure had been studied and decided upon.

The committee included in its report a letter from Director of the Budget Frank Pace to Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson approving the latest revisions of the Pay Bill with minor exceptions and commenting on a number of related features.

Mr. Pace informed Secretary Johnson that the Pay Bill in its present form is consistent with the views of the President, with two minor qualifications, which will undoubtedly be taken care of by Senatorial amendments.

One change desired by the Budget Director is the elimination of the provision of the bill which would permit the President to assign responsibility for handling retired pay, hospitalization and reexamination of retired personnel to the Veterans' Administration. The President feels that these activities are properly chargeable to National Defense and should be retained by the Military Establishment.

The other change would place a limitation of five years on the $100 per month pay differential for doctors and dentists. Under the Pay Bill this special inducement pay would be indefinitely extended.

Mr. Pace agrees with the Defense Secretary in his estimate that the cost of the bill for the Fiscal Year 1950 will be $351 million, with the effective date 1 October, or $399 million, assuming an effective date of 1 July 1950.

Text of Pay Report

of earnings of selected college and university graduates. These data were supplemented by findings of the most recent surveys made by the Army-Air Force Wage Board, which establishes basic salary and wage rates and levels for civilian employees of the Departments of the Army and Air Force employed in the so-called blue collar occupations which are found in the industrial craft and laborer fields.

In establishing the proposed pay scales, the matter of so-called hidden benefits, such as hospitalization, commissary, and post exchange privileges were considered. Many civilian industries now offer these same emoluments in various forms. In considering these emoluments for the services, it was necessary to consider at the same time special expenses, peculiar to the services, such as purchase of uniforms and insignia, purchase of civilian clothes suitable for all occasions and to the individual's grade and station, additional expenses incurred through frequent changes of station, added expenses due to wear and tear on household goods, often increased insurance costs due to the nature of service performed, and so forth. An attempt was made to attach a concrete dollar or percentage figure to expenses which servicemen undergo due to the exigencies of the service and other special emoluments as the result of being a member of one of the services. This was not found to be practicable since expenses are not incurred by everyone in equal amounts or at the same intervals, and the emoluments do not accrue to all and the benefits vary greatly. However, an attempt to balance the special expenses against the special emoluments was made and the committee came to the conclusion that in the long run they balance out each other.

Pattern of Compensation

The rates thus determined were employed to provide a pattern of compensation for the uniformed services covering both basic pay and allowances; i.e., basic compensation. Basic compensation for each grade in the enlisted, warrant officer, and officer categories was charted at the career expectancy years for each grade so that the standard rate in industry would correspond to the rate which a person in service would obtain as he proceeded upward normally in accordance with the career program expected to operate for enlisted personnel and warrant officers and in accordance with the promotion laws and practices in effect for officers. Beyond this, the standard compensation for each grade so established was extended forward and backward within set limits to permit in-grade increases based on total length of service, corresponding somewhat to the present scheme of longevity increases. Within this pattern, consequently, the career serviceman who advances in the normal fashion can expect to earn about the same amount as a person having comparable responsibility in private industry. Those who advance more quickly will not be underpaid because of lack of service and those who falter will not be as well rewarded simply by accumulating years of service. The scales are adjusted, moreover, in some areas, such as the junior officer grades, to provide a greater amount to induce men to select a military career, and in other areas, to provide a lesser amount when the fairly liberal retirement benefits become available.

The Pay Readjustment Act of 1942 employed a system of base pay and longevity increments, within a pay period structure for officers. An annual base pay was established for each of six pay periods for the six grades of officers below the rank of brigadier general. An officer's total length of service determined the pay period to which he was allocated in such manner as to make it possible for an officer of any given grade to receive the pay usually applicable to the next higher or next lower grade by reason of respectively relatively long or relatively short service. Pay for longevity was granted on the percentage basis of 5 per cent of base pay for each 3 years of service, not only for officers but for all personnel. Allowances granted varied with the pay period and dependency status of the officers concerned.

The proposed scales eliminate the base pay and pay period systems and substitute therefor basic pay which includes, as a single sum, the amount to which each person is entitled in accordance with grade and cumulative years of service. Increases within each grade are provided by flat amounts of $15 or $7.50 per month, depending on pay grade, rather than percentage additions, granted every 2 years until 18 years' total service have been accumulated and every 4 years thereafter until, as at present, a total of 30 years has been completed. The recommended scale thereby minimizes the significance of length of service in determining the amount of pay.

Thus, in the future, officers will not, because of years of service alone, regardless of grade, move into a higher pay period as is the case under existing law. As has already been indicated, it is possible today for a lieutenant colonel with 30 years' service to receive the same pay as a brigadier general. Likewise, a first lieutenant with over 10 years' service, under existing law, draws the pay of a captain with over 9 years' service. And a captain with over 17 years' service draws the pay of a major with over 15 years' service. This was necessary in the past during periods of long stagnation in rank, but in view of the new promotion law, over which the Armed Services Committee labored for many months, that situation has been eliminated.

Enlisted Pay Grades

Before stating a few examples of what the new pay scales provide, attention is invited to the fact that the pay grades for enlisted personnel have been renumbered. Henceforth the highest pay grade for enlisted personnel will be known as the seventh pay grade, and the highest pay grade for officer personnel will be known as the eighth pay grade. In other words, pay grade 1 for officers, warrant officers, and enlisted personnel alike will be the lowest pay grade instead of the highest, as now exists for enlisted personnel, which should make pay scales and references to pay grades more easily understood.

A few examples of what the pay scales provide follow:

Under existing law, a recruit (pay grade 1) receives $75 a month. Under the proposed bill, he will continue to receive $75 a month. In this connection, it should be noted that the Hook Commission was strongly of the opinion that the pay of a recruit should not be increased. The committee concurs in this position completely.

Under existing law, a major general, regardless of years of service, receives $733.33 a month. Under the proposed bill, a major general with 30 years' service will receive $1,005 a month, and with 0 to 26 years of service, $975 a month.

The committee wishes to stress this pay increase for major generals and state categorically that it believes this increase to be fully justified. We are not going to have the military leadership, the brains and the skill necessary to fight a future war, if we do not provide adequate compensation for our military leaders.

Under existing law, a brigadier general, regardless of years of service, receives $550 a month. Under the proposed bill, a brigadier general with over 30 years' service will receive $870 a month, and with 0 to 25 years of service, $810 a month. This is a substantial increase in pay, and again the committee does not desire to pass over this increase slightly with the possible thought that it will be unobserved. The committee not only hopes it will be observed but also hopes it will be carefully noted because it is an increase that has long been overdue. It is fortunate for our Nation that men in the past who could have commanded much higher salaries in industry have remained in the military services under these inadequate pay scales.

With the present pay scales in private industry, we can no longer ask our future military leaders to make financial sacrifices such as many of them are doing today. The committee was advised by one member of the Hook Commission that, while prices may in all probability go down, nevertheless the wage scale for the Nation as a whole will undoubtedly remain reasonably constant. While there may not be a continuation of the present high salaries now paid by industry to men with executive ability, nevertheless their salaries will continue to reflect their ability. By the time an officer reaches the rank of brigadier general, he must of necessity have demonstrated in most instances outstanding executive ability or he would not have attained that rank.

Under existing law, a master sergeant with over 18 years' service receives $214.50 a month. Under the proposed bill, a master sergeant with over 18 years' service will receive $270 a month.

Under existing law, a second lieutenant with under 3 years' service receives base pay of $150 a month. Under the proposed bill, a second lieutenant with under 2 years' service will receive $225 a month.

Under existing law, a corporal with over 3 years' service receives $105 a month. Under the proposed law, a corporal with over 4 years' service will receive $135 a month.

Warrant Officers

Under existing law, a warrant officer, junior grade, with over 6 years' service receives base and longevity pay of $198 per month. Under the proposed bill, a warrant officer, junior grade, will receive $225 per month. The scale for warrant officers represents a bridge between that for commissioned officers and that for enlisted personnel. The periods within which length-of-service increases operate are fairly extensive, since such officers are not subject to forced attrition and are more likely to spend a longer time in each grade. The wider range of pay provided serves as an inducement to enlisted persons with considerable service to seek promotion to the warrant-officer grades and permits officers now within this category to enjoy increases within a limited promotion area.

A single scale for warrant officers is proposed despite recognized differences in the work programs and promotional opportunities within the uniformed services. Unlike the officer and enlisted scales, the amounts suggested have no counterpart in civilian occupations but represent a modification paralleling, in general, adjustments made in the other scales.

In other words, the over-all increases in basic pay for officers amount to an increase of 25 per cent for second lieutenants, 39 per cent for first lieutenants, 47 per cent for captains, 59 per cent for majors, 35 per cent for lieutenant colonels, 32 per cent for colonels, 58 per cent for brigadier generals, and 37 per cent for major generals. For warrant officers, the increases range from 14 to 20 per cent. For enlisted personnel, the increases range from 3 per cent for the private to 36 per cent for the sergeant.

Career Plan

The scale for enlisted personnel was primarily designed to induce young men to undertake careers in the uniformed services. For this reason, and based on the salaries paid in industry, the highest percentage increases are proposed for the top four grades of enlisted personnel. Enlisted personnel are generally considered to be career soldiers at the end of their second enlistment, which would approximate grade 4 with 7 years of service. Considering the large pay increases given to enlisted personnel in the lower grades in prior pay readjustments, the proposed relatively small increases in these grades are considered adequate and reasonable. In this connection, the recruit, grade E-1, will receive

Financial Digest

The recent Treasury decision to offer the usual one-year 1 1/4 per cent certificates in exchange for more than five billions in bonds and certificates due next month was disappointing to banking circles. There had been a prevalent belief that a 1 per cent five-year note, a much more attractive offering, would be provided.

Production cutbacks in metals have been general during the past two weeks. For the first time since 1939, zinc mining output has been reduced to a point 25 per cent below peak rates. Leading gray iron foundries have also cut production 25 per cent below January operating rates.

The Kaiser-Frazer Corporation at its annual stockholders meeting this week reported a loss of $5,805,000 during the first quarter of 1949. It resulted largely from price reductions on the company's motor cars and the changeover costs for new models. The loss of nearly $6 million for the first quarter of this year is in contrast with a profit of $2,288,000 registered during the corresponding period of 1948.

However, E. F. Kaiser, president of the corporation, said that current retail sales of the company's cars are much larger than during the first quarter, and production schedules are being stepped up.

No increase, since over the past few years he has received increases amounting to approximately 400 per cent. It is pointed out that he is purely an apprentice and serves in the grade of recruit for only 4 months. It should be remembered that the value of food, housing, and clothing adds $108 per month to the enlisted pay scale, which compares favorably with the national average of pay of young men starting in industry.

It should be observed at this point that the proposed pay scales have been carefully analyzed and correlated. They are not subject to individual fluctuation. No pay scale for any one grade can be modified without revising the entire pay scale. Nor are the pay scales subject to a flat single-sum modification, for this would disrupt the entire scale disproportionately and would again require complete revision.

Special Pays

Title II also provides in some cases a continuation of certain special pays and revises other pays considerably. For example, the extra $100 a month for doctors and dentists is continued because of the critical shortage of such personnel in the uniformed services. The committee recommends that the continuation at this time of the $100 inducement pay for doctors and dentists not be regarded as an expression of permanent policy. This money is currently provided as a practical measure for coping with the serious medical situation existing in the services at the present time. As of 1 July, the National Military Establishment will be faced with a shortage of 1,605 qualified doctors and 1,124 qualified dentists. It is earnestly hoped that within the next few years this shortage of medical officers can be reduced to the point where this type of inducement will no longer be necessary. It is therefore recommended that the Congress at a later time review this problem with a view toward the possible repeal of this inducement pay.

Insofar as hazardous-duty pay is concerned, there has been a considerable revision. Pay for two additional hazardous duties is pro-

Merchant Marine

The Joint Committee for the American Merchant Marine reports in a Maritime Day statement that the nation's active merchant marine now consists of 1566 vessels totalling 17,730,000 deadweight tons, of which 1036 are cargo ships, 468 tankers, and 62 passenger type ships, capable of accommodating 19,370 passengers.

Approximately 81,000 officers and seamen are employed on American ocean-going vessels, while 150,000 steamship company shore employees, stevedores and longshoremen are required to meet the needs of the merchant marine.

Under construction in U.S. yards are 62 merchant vessels, 57 of them tankers and five passenger carrying ships. Eleven are being built for foreign owners.

In addition to the active fleet, the National Defense Reserve Fleet has 1881 merchant vessels of 18,700,000 deadweight tons.

vided in the proposed bill, namely, contact with lepers, which is extended to the armed services, and primary duty involving the demolition of explosives.

The two most widely known hazardous-duty pays are those applicable to aircraft and submarines. Under the proposed bill, flight and submarine pay will be based on flat sums rather than the existing 50 per cent of base and longevity pay. For flight and submarine pay, these sums range from a low of $30 for recruits to $75 for the highest enlisted grade per month; for officers, from a low of $100 a month for second lieutenants to a high of $210 per month for colonels, followed by a marked and sharp decrease to $100 a month for general officers. This, in effect, represents a small decrease in flight pay for enlisted personnel and most officers, and a slight increase only for lieutenants, based on old pay scales. And at the same time it provides a very marked decrease in flight pay for general and flag officers who henceforth will receive an additional $100 a month flight or submarine pay, as compared with the old 50 per cent of base and longevity pay. For all other hazardous duty, officers will receive an additional $100 a month, regardless of grade, and enlisted men will receive $50 per month regardless of grade. The net effect on flight and submarine pay, based on the full fiscal year of 1950, represents a saving to the Government of approximately $13,000,000.

In addition, the committee has revised entirely the special pay for sea and foreign duty. Under existing law, all commissioned officers are entitled to an additional 10 percent of their base pay while on sea or foreign duty. All enlisted personnel and warrant officers are entitled to an additional 20 per cent of base pay while on such duty. The committee, following the general recommendation of the Hook Commission, eliminated sea- and foreign-duty pay for all commissioned and warrant officers and adopted a flat basis for enlisted personnel ranging from a low of $8 additional per month for the lowest enlisted grade to a high of $22.50 a month for the top enlisted grade.

The committee is in complete agreement with the Hook Commission that sea and foreign duty is part of the normal career of all members of the uniformed services. It especially recognizes that officers should not be compensated with special pay for overseas assignments which must be anticipated as part of an average career in the services. On the other hand, the committee also agrees with the Hook Commission that some small remuneration should be granted to enlisted personnel who serve at sea or in foreign stations because of the morale factor involved. In view of the pay increases provided in the bill, the committee is of the opinion that the sums provided for sea and foreign duty for enlisted personnel are sufficient. Enactment of this provision alone will result in an annual saving to the Government of approximately $77,000,000.

Section 207 of title II provides a new method of granting reenlistment bonuses to enlisted personnel. In the future such bonuses will be paid, following original enlistments, upon the basis of years to be served rather than on the old theory of paying $50 a year for past service. The new reenlistment bonuses range from a low of $40 for a 2-year reenlistment to a high of $360 for a 6-year reenlistment.

Title III

Title III pertains to allowances, which are in addition to basic pay. Section 301 provides a basic allowance for subsistence. This section reenacts, generally speaking, existing law, but provides that the President may prescribe the subsistence allowances for all members of the uniformed services.

However, until such time as the President may prescribe new rates, one noticeable change from existing law is the subsistence allowance granted to officers. Henceforth, unless changed by the President, all officers, regardless of their status with respect to dependents, will be entitled to $45 a month for subsistence. Under existing law, officers receive either $21 a month for subsistence if without dependents; or $42 a month, or $63 a month, depending upon rank, with dependents.

Enlisted men will continue to be entitled to subsistence allowances ranging from $1.05 a day to $3 a day, depending upon the circumstances under which the allowances are granted. Attention is invited to the Hook Commission recommendation that subsistence allowances should not depend upon the existence or nonexistence of dependents, and with this the committee is in complete agreement.

Section 302 provides for allowances for quarters and follows the general pattern of existing law. A new enlisted grade, that of E-4 (with 7 or more years of service), will be entitled to a quarters allowance for dependents. This recognizes the principle that enlisted persons who normally will attain the grade of E-4 upon the completion of 7 years of service may reasonably be expected to be career personnel. At this point in an enlisted man's career, he will be eligible for a quarters allowance for dependents. This section specifically states that an enlisted man in grade E-4 with less than 7 years' service and all lower grades shall be considered at all times to be members without dependents for the purposes of quarters allowance.

Favor "Good Marriages"

Lest the committee be accused of discouraging marriage, it should be noted that this matter was considered carefully and thoroughly. To quote a member of the Hook Commission, Father Cavanaugh, on the subject of marriage:

"We are not prejudiced against marriage. We are in favor of good marriages, and we think the conditions should be created so that men will get married and stay married."

Text of Pay Report

In general, this section entitles officers not living in Government quarters to quarters allowance ranging from $75 to $150 per month with dependents, and $60 to $120 per month without dependents.

Under existing law, enlisted men, when not furnished actual living quarters, are entitled to a money allowance for quarters which, when combined with the allowance subscribed for subsistence, may not exceed $5 per day. The current rate of quarters allowance for enlisted personnel is normally fixed at $1.25 per day. This has the general effect of providing enlisted men with a quarters allowance of approximately $37.50 a month. Under the proposed section, qualified enlisted personnel with dependents, not furnished quarters, will be entitled to a quarters allowance of $67.50 a month; if without dependents, and where quarters are not furnished, all enlisted personnel will be entitled to a quarters allowance of $45 per month.

Travel and Transportation

Section 303 of the proposed bill contains new provisions of law with respect to travel and transportation allowances. Under existing law, officers traveling under competent orders are entitled to one of the following allowances:

(1) A mileage allowance of 8 cents per mile traveled.

(2) Railroad transportation, including first-class ticket, plus 5 cents per mile traveled.

(3) A first-class railroad ticket with pullman accommodations plus $7 per diem while in a travel status, or reimbursement for actual expenses not to exceed $8 per diem. (This is rarely used by the services.)

(4) Air travel plus $7 per diem; or, in lieu of per diem, reimbursement for actual expenses not to exceed $8 per day.

These are the only four methods under existing law for reimbursing officers traveling under competent orders within the United States.

Under existing law all enlisted persons, regardless of grade, when traveling under orders, are entitled to be furnished actual transportation plus pullman accommodations. In addition, they are entitled to cash payment for subsistence not to exceed $5 per day. When neither subsistence nor quarters are furnished, they receive $5 per day. When quarters and/or subsistence are furnished, the prescribed allowance is reduced or no allowance at all is payable.

Enlisted men when traveling by air are entitled to the same travel allowance as prescribed for officers, i. e., reimbursement of actual expenses not to exceed $8 per day or a per diem allowance of $7 per day.

Under the proposed section 303, all members of the uniformed services will be entitled to travel and transportation allowances for travel performed or to be performed, and they may receive one of the following types:

(1) Actual transportation; or reimbursement therefor; or a monetary allowance in lieu of the cost of transportation at a rate not in excess of 7 cents per mile; or

(2) Actual transportation; or reimbursement therefor; or a monetary allowance not to exceed 7 cents per mile; plus, in any case, a per diem of not to exceed $9 per day; or

(3) A mileage allowance not to exceed 10 cents per mile.

It should be noted, therefore, that per diem has been increased from $7 to $9; monetary allowance based upon mileage has been increased from 5 cents to 7 cents per mile; and mileage allowance has been increased from 8 cents to 10 cents per mile. This the committee believes to be in conformity with the actual conditions that prevail today. It should at least alleviate the present situation which has resulted in personal expenditures in excess of actual reimbursement by officers and enlisted personnel traveling under orders. The section also reenacts existing law with regard to a per diem for travel outside the United States.

It also provides for the transportation of dependents, and modifies existing law authorizing transportation for personnel and their dependents and shipment of their household effects upon original appointment or enlistment in the service and upon final separation from the service. Heretofore, only members of the Reserve components were entitled to transportation for themselves and dependents and shipment of baggage when first called into active service and upon release from active duty. In addition, personnel placed upon the retired list have heretofore been entitled to transportation to their homes and transportation for their dependents and shipment of household effects.

Dependents' Transportation

This section also includes in the permanent law provisions for the transportation of dependents even though there is involved no change of station in order that dependents may travel at Government expense between points in the United States where the service member is on sea duty or on duty outside the United States at a post of duty where dependents are not permitted to accompany him. It likewise covers, in the permanent law, authority to pay for transportation for dependents in cases where dependents, because of military necessity, must be evacuated from certain areas. This latter authority may be exercised only under unusual or emergency conditions, including but not limited to (1) circumstances when duty is being performed by service personnel at places designated by the Secretaries concerned as within zones from which dependents should be evacuated, (2) circumstances when orders, which direct temporary duty travel of such member, do not provide for return to the permanent station or do not specify or imply any limit to the period of absence from the permanent station, or (3) circumstances when such members are serving on permanent duty at stations outside the continental United States or in Alaska, or on sea duty.

In view of the practical necessity and desirability of uniform application of this section to all uniformed services, the bill specifically provides that regulations with respect to the dependents, and that such regulations shall be uniform for all services insofar as practicable. Until such regulations have been issued, the new rates will not be effective.

Section 305 reenacts existing law with respect to personal money allowances for officers serving in the grade of lieutenant general or equivalent, officers serving in the grade of general or equivalent and officers serving as heads of their respective services. The only change from existing law is the addition of a money allowance for the Commandant of the Coast Guard.

Title IV

Title IV of the proposed bill contains a much needed revision of the present physical disability retirement laws for the uniformed services. It is sufficient to say that under existing law officers found to be physically unfit for service as a result of an incident of the service are eligible to be retired at a flat 75 percent of the pay of the rank in which they were then serving. Furthermore, such pay is tax-free.

Under these laws, many thousands of officers have been retired without regard to the percent of their disability and have since drawn 75 percent of their pay and will continue to draw this amount for the remainder of their lives. In the Army, over 32,000 non-Regular officers have been certified to the Veterans' Administration alone and are eligible to receive retirement pay. Approximately 6,460 Regular Army officers were on the retired lists for physical disability as of 31 January 1949. In the Navy, 3,273 Reserve officers and 4,701 Regular officers are receiving disability retired pay. On 1 January 1949, the Marine Corps retired lists contained the names of 654 Reserve officers, and 633 Regular officers retired for physical disability. It will cost the United States Government approximately $150,000,000 in fiscal 1950 to pay these officers retired or certified to the Veterans' Administration for physical disability. The provisions of this title will go far toward preventing this sum from increasing in the immediate future, and will sharply reduce the costs of all future disability retirements.

Likewise, it should be noted that there are no provisions in existing law which permit enlisted men of the Army with less than 20 years' service to be retired for physical disability at 75 percent of their pay. On the other hand, enlisted men of the Navy and Marine Corps who suffer a disability making them unfit for further military service may only be retired after 20 years of service with pay computed on the number of years of service times 2½ percent of the pay of their rank, and this without 75 percent of their pay if such persons have less than 30 years' service.

New Concept of Retirement

The proposed title changes this entire concept of retirement, and the committee commends it to the House of Representatives completely, wholeheartedly, and without reservation. In addition, the National Guard Association, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and all branches of the uniformed services generally concur in the provisions of this title.

Under this title, Reserves and Regulars, enlisted personnel and officers will all be treated alike. It is proposed that in the future there will be, generally speaking, two conditions, either one of which must be met to qualify for physical disability retirement: (1) A physical disability which occurs at any time while a member is entitled to basic pay and is the "proximate result of the direct performance of active duty," or (2) a physical disability which occurs any time after the completion of 8 years of service and thus was "incurred while entitled to basic pay." There is obviously a fundamental difference between an injury or disease which is the proximate result of the direct performance of active duty and that which is incurred while entitled to basic pay. The first is confined to that injury or disease which has as a causative factor the performance of actual duty; the second is that which may happen to any man notwithstanding his occupational work. Thus, a member who is rendered physically unfit to perform the duties of his rank or grade as the "proximate result of the direct performance of active duty" will be eligible to qualify for disability retirement immediately upon entering an active duty status. On the other hand, the committee has determined that the Government cannot assume, nor should it assume, a lifetime financial responsibility for all members of the uniformed services until they have at least contributed a sufficient portion of their time to justify this assumption on the part of the Government. Thus, until a member has served at least 8 years, he will not be eligible for disability retirement merely for a disability that has no connection with his actual performance of active duty.

Periodic Examinations

The bill provides that a member of the uniformed services who is disabled as a "proximate result of the direct performance of active duty" to the extent of 30 per cent or more, in accordance with current Veterans' Administration ratings, will be eligible to be placed upon a temporary disability retired list, and he will thereafter draw disability retirement pay computed by multiplying the degree of his disability by the basic pay of the highest rank in which he served satisfactorily; or at his election, by multiplying the number of years of active service that such individual has performed by 2½ per centum of the pay of the highest rank or grade in which he has served satisfactorily. For the next 5 years following the placement of the individual's name on the temporary disability retired list, he shall be subject to periodic examinations not less frequent than every 18 months, and if at the end of that time the member recovers, he will, if a Regular, be re-commissioned and restored to the active list. If an enlisted man, he will be reenlisted. If a Reserve, he will resume his Reserve status. If at the end of that 5 years, or any time prior thereto, it is determined that the individual has a permanent disability of 30 per centum or more, which makes him unfit for further military duty, he will be permanently placed upon the retired list and will draw retirement pay based upon the percentage of his disability at that time, or upon the number of years of service that he has completed, not including the time spent on the temporary disability retired list. If the individual during this period recovers partially and is still unfit to perform the duties of his office, grade, or rating, and his disability is less than 30 per centum, he will be given severance pay not to exceed 2 years' basic pay, depending upon his length of service; or, if he has completed 20 or more years of service, he will be eligible to be retired based upon years of service.

This same procedure likewise applies to the individual who receives his disability merely while entitled to basic pay and who has completed eight or more years of active service.

Should an individual be found physically unfit as a result of an injury or disease incurred while entitled to basic pay not the proximate result of the direct performance of active duty, and have less than 8 years' service, he may, regardless of the extent of his disability, be given severance pay. The committee is of the opinion that the Government should not henceforth be required to protect the security of all members of the uniformed services until they at least have demonstrated their intention of making the military service a career. The size of the uniformed services at present and for the foreseeable future is such as to make the continuation of the present physical disability retirement laws untenable, unrealistic, and an unwarranted imposition upon the American taxpayer.

The committee is not unmindful of the tremendous importance of the reservist, and it is felt that his interests are adequately protected for any injury or disease which may occur while he is engaged in the actual direct performance of active duty. But the committee is of the opinion that disability which occurs without any direct connection with performance of active duty should not be grounds for retirement until an individual has, by confining his occupation to military duties, at least contributed 8 years of his life to such duties.

Among other things, this title protects the interests of those who would be otherwise eligible for retirement under Title III of Public Law 810 (Reserve Retirement Act), and likewise protects the interests of those who have been integrated into the services and would be otherwise eligible for involuntary retirement.

This title also contains a provision which is fully justified when the amount of money involved is considered. Any person who receives severance pay under the provisions of this title shall have it deducted from any compensation to which he might otherwise be entitled for the same disability from the Veterans' Administration.

Persons Already Retired

As to those presently retired for physical disability, the title provides that they may elect to qualify under the new rules for the new pay scales, or they may retain their present retirement benefits. If they elect to so qualify, there will be no penalty for failure to do so; but they must be eligible in all respects. Thus, those now drawing physical disability retirement or retired pay must have been retired with a physical which, under current Veterans' Administration standards, was 30 per cent or more. They must have received the injury or disease as the proximate result of the direct performance of active duty, or in the alternative must have completed at least 8 years of active service, as defined in the title. In view of the proposed pay scales, it is obvious that no persons now drawing physical disability retired pay will benefit by requalifying unless they have at least a 60-per cent disability or a sufficient number of years of service to benefit by the new scales. However, the title also contains a provision that persons now or hereafter retired for disability who elect to have their retirement pay based upon years of service will no longer be entitled to the tax-free benefits that they now enjoy. There will be no more retirement of high-ranking officers with minor disabilities which results in tax-free retirement benefits.

Insofar as the term "active service" is concerned, the reservist is protected in view of the fact that he is eligible to count all time which is computable under title III of Public Law 810 (Reserve Retirement Act). Likewise, the integrated officer is protected insofar as his constructive service is concerned.

With respect to the administration of the proposed bill, it is provided that the Secretary concerned will determine fitness for active service, percentage of disability at the time of separation from active service, suitability for reentry into active service and entitlement to and payment of disability severance pay. Insofar as the functions incident to payments of disability retirement pay, hospitalization, and future reexaminations are concerned, they may be determined by the Secretary concerned or by the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs, whichever the President decides is in the best interests of the Government.

Title IV of the proposed bill, therefore, incorporates many of the recommendations of the report of the Elston Subcommittee on Disability Retirement (80th Cong.) and likewise many of the recommendations of the Hook Commission with revisions and refinements suggested by the committee and Reserve and veterans' organizations who testified before the committee. The committee believes this title to be fair and equitable in all respects. It is obviously a sharp reduction from present law. But it does grant to enlisted personnel the same disability retirement privilege available to officers. The committee is convinced that this title will go far to eliminate many of the alleged abuses resulting from the retirement of officers as a result of World War II.

Title V

Title V of the proposed bill contains necessary miscellaneous provisions, the explanation for which will be found in the sectional analysis.

Family Allowances

Perhaps the most significant section of title V is section 511, which terminates the war for the purposes of the Servicemen's Dependents Allowance Act of 1942. The committee gave this matter most careful consideration, and after hearing all sides of the story determined that it was in the best interests of the Government and of the services to eliminate now the family allowance benefits that have been in existence since 1942. Therefore, 6 months after the enactment of this act, family allowance benefits will cease. This follows the general theory of the entire bill that pay should be commensurate with rank and responsibility and should have as little connection as possible with dependency, and more specifically should have no connection whatsoever with the number of dependents that a member may have.

The Dependents Allowance Act was fully justified in time of war when fathers or men who were the sole support of their families were being drafted, but it can have no place in a peacetime military establishment. It is exceedingly costly and the estimate for the 1950 military budget indicates that the cost of dependents allowances for fiscal 1950, unless otherwise terminated, would cost the Federal Government $314,000,000. The elimination of the family allowance benefits 6 months after the date of approval of the proposed act, assuming a July 1, date, will result in a net savings to the Government during fiscal 1950 of $191,000,000. Its continuation for the 6-month period, as written in section 511, will still cost, for that period, $123,000,000. There can be no further justification for continuing this allowance. It has no connection whatsoever with pay for responsibility and rank.

The committee, however, realized, that there may be people in the services today who enlisted to take advantage of the family allowance benefits. The services have stated frankly that they do not desire that these people continue in service if such persons desire to leave the military service as a result of the elimination of the family allowances. Thus, the bill provides that any persons whose total compensation on the day preceding the date of enactment is greater than that which he receives upon the termination of family allowances may, upon application, be discharged from the service. The committee does not anticipate that this will have any marked effect upon any branch of the service.

Section 512 of title V applies to those heretofore retired for reasons other than physical disability. This section permits those now on the retired lists to elect to retain their present pay or to compute their pay on the basis of the new pay scales at the rate of 2½ percent of the monthly basic pay of the highest federally recognized rank, grade, or rating satisfactorily held by the member during his entire career multiplied by the number of effective date of 1 September. The cost for each of the Fiscal Years 1951 and 1952 is estimated at between $400 million and $405 million. Mr. Pace notes that the costs of the proposed legislation are now within the limitation of $400 million of the 1950 budget.

In his letter to Mr. Johnson the Budget Director makes a number of suggestions and comments, some of which may be incorporated in the bill by Congress, and others will be the subject for future study. He indicates that the adoption or rejection of these suggestions will not affect administration support of the measure.

Mr. Pace said that he is recommending to the President an across-the-board study of all Federal civilian and military retirement systems, with a view to developing a fair and consistent contributory retirement plan. Apparently the President and the Budget Director strongly favor a contributory feature to be ultimately incorporated in the military retirement system, despite the rejection of the proposal by the Hook Commission. However, Mr. Pace agrees that there are not now sufficient and adequate data on which to base a thorough study of the problem. It seems clear, therefore, that there will be no administration insistence on the inclusion of this proposal in the pending Pay Bill.

Mr. Pace feels that there should be a further conference of the Defense Secretary, the Budget Director and the President on the development of a gross pay alternative to replace the pay scales recommended by the Hook Commission. The President in a letter to former Defense Secretary James Forrestal had previously recommended that pay and rental and subsistence allowances be combined as gross pay, which would all be subject to Federal income tax, whereas present allowances are exempt from such tax.

There are two principal obstacles to combining pay and allowances. One is that it would necessitate establishing a different formula for retirement pay, since the present rate is computed on base pay and not on allowances. If it were figured on gross compensation at present percentages the result would be that retired personnel would receive a material increase. Mr. Pace suggests that if the ratio of retired pay were lowered from 2½ per cent to 1½ per cent of gross pay for each year of active duty the benefits would be about the same as under the present system.

The other objection to the gross pay principle arises out of inactive training pay of Reserve components. Under present law National Guard members and some reserve personnel receive one day's pay of their grade, without allowances, for each drill period, or equivalent training. If allowances were combined with pay the effect would be to increase substantially the pay for such training. Mr. Pace contends that inactive training compensation under the proposed new pay scales would be excessive for the effort and time required. He said that while there would be a momentary outcry against any reduction the effect would be less serious than the eventual reaction against such costly inactive duty training.

Text of Pay Report

years of active service.

Section 513 specifically provides that the new pay scales shall apply to those heretofore or hereafter granted retired pay pursuant to the Reserve Retirement Act of 1948.

Section 514 applies specifically to World War I veterans who as enlisted men of the Regular services served as temporary officers during World War I and were thereafter advanced on the retired list with the rank but not the pay of the highest grade in which they satisfactorily served. This section will give them the benefits of retirement pay in the highest grade satisfactorily served in World War I.

Prevent Reductions

Section 516 is an important provision which temporarily prevents any member from suffering any reduction in pay as a result of the enactment of the proposed bill, not including dependents' allowances and certain other minor allowances. This means that for the next 3 years persons now in the uniformed services shall not receive less than their present pay. In other words, so long as a man remains qualified, he may retain his present compensation.

Section 520 is the savings provision relating to the retirement pay of members retired prior to the date of enactment. It merely preserves existing retirement pay.

Section 523 of the proposed bill eliminates retired pay computed at 75 per cent of the grade in which serving, regardless of years of service, for specially commended Navy and Marine Corps officers, but continues the honorary promotion for such personnel for acts which occurred prior to December 31, 1946. Eventually this privilege of higher honorary rank will be eliminated, and the special retirement provision of 75 per cent, regardless of years of service, is eliminated effective as of the effective date of the act.

The remaining sections of title V are technical in detail and will be found in the sectional analysis. Many special pays and allowances have been eliminated under the proposed bill, such as the Regular Army Reserve bonus of $2 per month, special pay for mail clerks, messmen, Marine Corps cooks, stenographic reporters, acting chief petty officers, mine planters, aides to generals and admirals; special allowances for mounts, and for performances of members of the Marine Corps Band; special pay for medals, badges, and arms qualifications.

Costs

The cost of the proposed bill will be approximately $360,000,000 for fiscal 1950 if the effective date for all pay provisions is placed at 1 October 1949. The increased cost for fiscal 1951 would be approximately $406,000,000, and thereafter the cost should decrease in view of the new physical disability retirement laws, the eventual complete elimination of family allowance benefits, the eventual elimination of the savings provision, and the elimination of many special pays. In this connection, attention is invited to a portion of the President's letter of 5 March 1949, addressed to the Secretary of Defense, and made a part of the record of the hearings on the proposed bill. The President stated in part in his letter:

"The budget which I have submitted to Congress for the fiscal year 1950 includes a sum of $400,000,000 for the purpose of adjustments in military compensation, including retirement benefits as well as pay and allowances. Preliminary studies indicate that the net additional cost in 1950 of the proposed legislation in its present form would amount to approximately $590,000,000, excluding adjustments on a permanent basis of certain family allowances for enlisted personnel now in effect under wartime statutes. Some way must be found to bring this cost down to meet budget requirements."

The President then suggested that the pay scales be placed on a gross pay basis fully taxable; or that a retirement system based upon a 6 per cent contributory basis be adopted. The committee has carefully considered the President's letter and fully concurs in his recommendation with respect to a contributory retirement system. In view of the fact, however, that such a proposal would entail a vast amount of further study, extensive statistical analysis, and lengthy hearings, it was determined that it was not feasible to adopt such a program at this time. The committee concurs in the general recommendation with respect to a contributory retirement system, but recognizes, as it did with voluntary and involuntary retirement, that it should be the subject of a special and separate study. The pay and physical disability retirement provisions, it is felt, are of such importance to the welfare of the Nation that they should be enacted at this session of the Congress and should not be further delayed. Insofar as the President's other recommendation with regard to gross pay is concerned, the committee found that it would present many perplexing problems that should be determined by a committee charged with the tax problems of the Nation and should not be a part of a career compensation act until the framework for the tax structure has been studied and decided upon.

Meet Budget Requirements

Thus, the committee has met the President's budgetary requirements for 1950, and as previously indicated, the proposed bill will cost the Government an additional $360,000,000 in fiscal 1950. It would not be feasible to place all provisions of this bill into effect immediately because of the necessary administrative work involved. Therefore, an effective date of 1 October has been adopted which would give the services sufficient time to acquaint their finance officers and all of their departments with the contents of the new act. At the same time, a 1 October effective date saves a considerable portion of the cost of the bill for fiscal 1950. The committee also considered the income tax return to the Government as a result of the elimination last January of income tax exemption for military personnel. As a matter of fact, it is anticipated that the Government will recover approximately $70,000,000 of the new pay scale, assuming a full fiscal year 1950 for pay purposes and a proportionate amount based on the October 1 effective date. The committee recognizes that this should not be considered in the over-all cost, but it is nevertheless a very substantial item.

Enormous Tax Increase

In this connection it should be noted that during the war and until January 1, 1949, all enlisted pay and the first $1,500 of officers' pay was tax exempt. The amount of income tax from service personnel (officers only) paid during the calendar year 1948 was $19,000,000. With the termination of the tax exemption on January 1, 1949, the annual amount of income tax paid by service personnel (officers and enlisted) on the present pay rates has increased to $149,000,000. Or, a net increase of $130,000,000 over 1948. If the new pay rates are enacted, the annual amount of income tax paid by service personnel will increase to $219,000,000. Or, a net increase in income tax recovery of $200,000,000 over 1948.

At a time when pay in every other field has had some upward revision to meet these living costs, every officer and enlisted man has taken a pay reduction during the current year. This has been due to the removal of the income-tax exemptions, which have in effect reduced the military take-home pay roll by $130,000,000—this being the annual amount of additional tax now being withheld by the Government.

The importance of the proposed legislation cannot be overestimated. Its early enactment is unanimously and strongly urged by the House Committee on Armed Services.
